Time Says, Come Air Travel Soon A Flier Will Run Woman, Always Safer

By Arthur Brisbane

OLIVER WENDELL HOLMES, justice of the Supreme Court, experienced difficulty in stepping up to his seat on Monday. Assistance was necessary.

Yesterday he resigned his position of great honor, bowing to old Time, that will not be thwarted.

Justice Holmes, now in his 92d year, represents the highest type of American citizenship, justice and legal knowledge.

President Hoover's letter to Justice Holmes saying, "No appreciation I could express would even feebly represent the gratitude of the American people for your life of public service," expresses the feeling of all Americans.

Appointed to the Supreme bench by Theodore Roosevelt, 30 years ago, Justice Holmes had served his country courageously in the Civil War. He has bullet marks to show for that service.

He has interpreted the Constitution of the United States for the people that created the Constitution and live under it, not for any accumulation of dollars, gathered in its shadow.

Long ago a Greek philosopher of Justice Holmes' age, leaving his class, stumbled, fell, went home and took his life.

The great mind of our Supreme bench is more philosophical than that Greek ancient. Obeying Time's command, he retires, but will live on, loved and honored by his country.

Mr. Litchfield, who built the great airship Akron and is building another air giant, believes such ships will presently be engaged in carrying passengers across the Atlantic and Pacific oceans, at 75 or 100 miles an hour, in place of the present 25 miles by steamer, the Atlantic bound trip made in four to five days, with safety greater than by steamship.

Mr. Kettering, chief engineer of General Motors, discussing the value of the dirigible with Mr. Litchfield and Mr. Knudsen, president of the Chevrolet Co., yesterday observed that water is six hundred times heavier than air, which most of us forget, with a proportionate resistance to moving bodies. Try moving your hand through the water in your tub, then through the air.

A steamship as big as the Akron requires 40,000 or 50,000 horsepower to make 25 miles an hour. The Akron, more than three times as fast, needs only 4500 horsepower.

President Hoover and Congress have rendered great public service, making it possible to create these giant experimental ships, biggest in the world.

An interesting campaign this year will be that of David S. Ingalls, the young Assistant Secretary of the Navy in charge of flying, for governor of Ohio.

Ohio should be proud to nominate him and the citizens to vote for him. Mr. Ingalls, a nephew of William Howard Taft, uses airplanes as you would use taxis or street cars, traveling always by air ever since he established himself as the navy's first combat ace in the big war.

Mr. Ingalls' "stable" consists of three airplanes, his personal property, and his ambition is helping inventors with flying ideas to develop them.

Ohio voters will have the pleasure of seeing the young candidate for governor go through a few stunts above the political meeting before he comes down to talk to them.

He fought in the air for this country at the age of 18, and immediately had command of his squadron.

If anybody says to a man, "You drive like a woman," let him answer, "I am proud of it." Statistics compiled by the American Automobile Association prove that women are much safer automobile drivers than men.

This is not surprising. Women are safer in everything, safe to trust with your secrets or your money, safe as friends, a safe reliance for the little baby crawling on the floor, or the old man in need of unselfish devotion.

"Last at the cross, and first at the tomb," women lead in devotion and service, men activity and conceit.

This column has remarked occasionally since 1918 that sooner or later the United States would begin paying for the war, and the process would not be pleasant.

Governor Roosevelt of New York, to meet a $137,000,000 emergency in his State, calls for income taxes doubled, half of the increase retroactive for 1931. Between the nation and Washington, Jan. 13 (AP)—The Administration's tax increase plan to provide $390,000,000 this year and $920,000,000 next fiscal year was presented today to the House ways and means committee by Secretary Mellon.

The proposals by which it is hoped to balance the budget by 1934, are:

Corporation income taxes to be increased from 12 to 12½ per cent, to net $27,000,000 in current fiscal year and $60,000,000 in 1933.

A super estate tax to be graduated from 1 per cent on estates of $50,000 to 25 per cent on those in excess of $10,000,000 from which $3,000,000 is expected within the coming 18 months.

INCOME TAX BOOSTS

Individual income taxes to have normal rates at 2, 4 and 6 per cent, with surtaxes beginning at one per cent on incomes over $10,000, graduated up to 37 per cent on those between $100,000 and $200,000 and 40 per cent on those above $500,000, as compared with the present maximum of 20 per cent on incomes in excess of $100,000.

Personal exemptions to be lowered to $1000 for a single person, and to $2750 with one having dependents, with a credit of $400 for each dependent. This is expected to bring in 700,000 additional individuals, making a total of federal taxpayers of 4,500,000, who are expected to pay an additional $83,000,000 for the last half of the current fiscal year and $185,000,000 in 1933. Three-fifths of the revenue is estimated to come from incomes in excess of $100,000.

SALES TAX REVIVALS

Revival of many of the miscellaneous taxes of 1924, including increase of one-sixth of present rates on tobacco manufactures and products, except cigars; an increase of 1 cent on stock sales; extension of tax on admissions of 10 cents and above; a tax on manufacturers' sales of automobiles, trucks and accessories at 3, 3 and 2½ per cent, respectively.

A stamp tax on conveyance of realty of 50 cents for each $500 value in excess of $100; a tax of 5 per cent on manufacturers' sales of radio and phonograph equipment; a stamp tax of 2 cents on each check and draft; tax on telegram, telegram, radio and cable message of 5 cents on charges between 24 and 50 cents and 10 cents in those above.

In the first six months in 1932 about $205,000,000 is expected to be netted from these miscellaneous taxes, while $514,000,000 is expected for the fiscal year 1933.

Postal rates would be increased to cover a deficit in revenues of about $150,000,000, although no specific rate was suggested.

LOVE VALUED AT $250,000

DIVORCEE ASKS $250,000 BALM

Mrs. Gretchen Van Zandt Merrill, wealthy society divorcee, of Chestnut st., Beacon Hill, today indignantly denied reports from New York that she had filed a $250,000 breach of promise against Cecil P. Stewart, wealthy New York business man.

At the same time reports from New York revealed that Stewart, who lives on Park ave., and is president of the American Merchant Marine Insurance Corporation and the Coastwise Transportation Company, of Boston, had characterized the suit as "nonsense."

According to New York information the action was brought in Manhattan Supreme Court in a brief complaint which set forth that Stewart had promised to marry Mrs. Merrill in September, 1929. Ridge would take place.

Mrs. Merrill was divorced from Abner S. Merrill in Boston four years ago. She was granted $50 weekly alimony and custody of their baby daughter. After her divorce she established her business in Boston and Cape Cod.

Fire Menaces Liner at New York Pier

New York, Jan. 13 (AP)—Firemen from four engine companies and the crews of two fireboats fought a fire for upwards of an hour today in the engine room of the Clyde-Mallory liner Cherokee.

The boat docked today and so far as could be learned none of the ship's 40 passengers was on board when the fire broke out.

BANKER SUICIDE AT PITTSFIELD

Pittsfield, Jan. 13 (AP)—Manson E. White, treasurer of the Berkshire Trust Co. of Pittsfield, shot and seriously wounded himself this morning.

He was removed from the bank to a hospital in a serious condition.

Judge Charles I. Hibbard, president of the bank, said he believed White had shot himself because of ill health. Hibbard said the bank had held its annual meeting yesterday and that its condition was perfectly sound. He said the shooting had no connection with the financial affairs of the trust company.

White shot himself twice in the head while in the basement of the bank, using a bank revolver. The first shot failed to inflict a serious wound, doctors said, but the second rendered him unconscious and wounded him so seriously that he was not expected to recover.

White went to work for the bank, formerly the Berkshire Loan & Trust Co., in 1896 and worked himself up until he was made treasurer about two years ago. He is 54 years old.

Speeding Blamed for Dedham Killing

The death of Thomas Rafferty, Dedham business man and father of oMintrcycle Officer Albert Rafferty of Dedham police, was caused by the negligence of Thomas A. Eddlem of Whiting ave., Dedham, operator of the machine which struck him, according to an inquest finding filed today by Judge E. Dwight Fullerton in Norfolk Superior court.

Eddlem was driving at an unwarranted rate of speed, too fast for High st., the artery on which the accident occurred on Nov. 6, Judge Fullerton stated.

Honolulu, Jan. 13 (AP)—A request for a special session of the Territorial Legislature to consider Honolulu's crime situation and the sensational murder case which culminated it has been decided on by legislative conferees.

While they prepared to present their recommendation to Governor Lawrence M. Judd, cancellations of tourist reservations for the winter season just starting were received by hotel men.

Commercial leaders forecast a flood of cancellations would result from the publicity following the lynching of Joseph Kahahawai, one of five men accused of attacking the wife of Naval Lieut. Thomas H. Massie.

Meanwhile, Mrs. Grace Hubbard Fortescue, mother of Mrs. Massie, was reported virtually confined to her bed aboard the receiving ship Alton at Pearl Harbor, where she, Lieut. Massie and other defendants are being held by naval authorities.

CONTINUALLY IN TEARS

Defense attorneys said she was worrying over the condition of her husband, who is ill in New York, so much that she is almost continually in tears.

Rumors the navy would refuse to surrender Mrs. Fortescue and the three naval men accused of slaying Kahahawai were set at rest by announcement from Washington that they will be turned over to civil courts on demand.

Plans were speeded for the murder trial of the accused four.

SOCIETY WOMAN MAID, SLAIN

Middleburg, Va., Jan. 13—Mrs. Spencer Illsley, socially prominent in New York and a winter resident here for some years, was found murdered in her home here today, her head crushed and beaten.

In the same room was found her maid, also dead and showing signs of having been similarly beaten.

The house was in wild disorder. It had evidently been ransacked, and at first glance local police said it was evidently a case of murder and robbery.

The bodies were found by Paul Bowen, a brother of Mrs. Illsley, who had spent the night at an adjoining farm. When he returned to his sister's home this morning he found the bodies and notified the police. Both women were in their night clothes.

Irish Editor Jailed on Contempt Charge

Dublin, Ireland, Jan. 13 (AP)—Frank Ryan, editor of the Republican newspaper An Problacht, was sentenced to three months for contempt of court today because he refused to recognize the jurisdiction of a military tribunal before which he was arraigned on a charge of sedition.

At the expiration of the contempt sentence he will be tried on the sedition charge. It took six men to arrest him last month.

Virginia Governor Cuts His Own Pay

Richmond, Va., Jan. 13 (AP)—Governor Pollard today cut his own salary 10 per cent. LONE WOLF IN 5 QUINCY BREAKS

As an aftermath of the busiest night in years for Quincy police and firemen, the former were still searching today for a lone wolf thief, and fire department officials were trying to solve the mystery of three "ghost" alarms.

The lone wolf broke into three houses, a dancing school and a church in a few hours, keeping police headquarters well supplied with reports of breaks from all sections of the city.

The offering boxes at the altar in St. Ann's Church, Hancock st., Wollaston, were broken open and rifled some time during the evening. Arriving home from a teacher's meeting, Miss Margaret L. Burns, 32 Cheriton rd., Quincy Center, and her sister, Annis, found their home robbed and saw the thief fleeing across lots. Their losses included two watches, three rings, a necklace and beads, valued at $100.

Mrs. John Kerrigan, 13 Walker st., Wollaston, reported the theft of two watches and two rings, valuing at $75. Mrs. Jean Dolbey, 47 Warwick st., Wollaston, contributed a $5 goldpiece to the burglars fund.

In the Norfolk building, 423 Hancock st., Norfolk Downs, a dancing academy was entered and a phonograph stolen.

The three ghost alarms were sounded within four minutes at daybreak. Each box, instead of sounding four rounds, sounded the number only once. The boxes had not been tampered with.

Coasting Injuries Fatal to Youth

New York, Jan. 13 (AP)—Lee Shubert, theatrical producer, today left Harkness Pavilion of the Medical Center, where he has been for two or three weeks following an operation.

GANG CHIEF HELD FOR GUSTIN DEATHS

Cucchiara and Congemi Also Accused; Coffey and Two Others Freed by Court

Joe Lombardi, reputed North End racket king, Franco Cucchiara and Salvatore Congemi were ordered held for the grand jury today for the murders of Frankie Gustin and Bernard "Dodo" Walsh.

Timothy Coffey, pal of Gustin and accused of his murder, was ordered freed by the court.

Judge Francis Good also freed Henry Salvitella and Antonio Fauci, who had been charged with both murders.

HELD ON GUN CHARGE

The charge of murder and conspiracy to murder lodged against Anthony "Bozo" Cortese were also ordered dismissed, but he was held for the grand jury on a charge of carrying three revolvers.

Thus the police succeeded in having held for grand jury deliberation only three of the seven men arrested as a result of the gang gun battle at 317 Hanover st. on December 22.

Ordering Lombardi, Congemi and Cucchiara held, Judge Good said:

"The evidence showed three men occupied the C. & F. Improper as an office, and there is evidence, as shown by my examination of the premises, that some shooting was done in that office."

DISBELIEVES ALIBI

Each of the trio held is charged with both murders. So, too, was Cortese and Salvitella.

Of Fauci, who was charged only with Walsh's murder, Judge Good said:

"I do not believe his alibi for his presence in the building, but there is not sufficient evidence to warrant holding him for the grand jury."

Coffey was accused of Gustin's murder only and of carrying a revolver. The revolver charge as well as that of murder, was dismissed.

GIVEN THREE MONTHS

Cortese, after the murder charges had been dismissed, was sentenced

HOOVER HUNTS SUCCESSORS TO HOLMES AND DAWES

HOPES FORBES WILL STAY IN JAPAN

Curtis D. Wilbur, Mitchell and Others Mentioned for the Supreme Bench Seat

Washington, Jan. 13 (AP)—President Hoover today set out upon a major man hunt, seeking to round out a list of 10 diplomats, financiers and men of legal mind to fill as many existing and probable vacancies.

He has dozens of names before him and others were placed upon his desk today. Their sifting will require weeks, perhaps months.

Talk in the capital centered principally on a successor to Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes of the Supreme Court.

Within the White House there was much discussion of a successor to Ambassador Dawes in London and at the Geneva Arms Conference; of someone to take Ambassador Forbes' place in Tokio; of a follower for Gov. Theodore Roosevelt in Porto Rico; of a new member of the radio commission.

There was a search, too, for men to fill at least four prospective directorship in the proposed $2,000,000 reconstruction corporation. The President hopes to have them chosen by the time Congress approves the plan.

WILBUR'S NAME LEADS

New names constantly entered the talk today of a successor to Justice Holmes. One was that of Federal Judge Curtis Dwight Wilbur, former Secretary of the Navy, brother of Secretary Wilbur of the Interior Department, and now upon the circuit court bench in California.

There was equally prominent speculation on Atty.-Gen. Mitchell, Democratic member of the President's cabinet; Newton D. Baker of Ohio, possible presidential candidate; Chief Justice Benjamin N. Cardozo of the New York State Court of Appeals, often mentioned as of Supreme Court timber, and Federal Judge William S. Kenyon of Iowa, a member of the Wickersham commission.

In Senate cloakroom conversation the names of Senators Walsh of Montana and Bratton of New Mexico, both Democrats, recurred. It was argued that five members of the Supreme Court are from the Northeast and that the President would turn westward for Holmes' successor.

MAY BE FLETCHER

Henry P. Fletcher, former chairman of the tariff commission, and before that ambassador to Italy often is mentioned as a successor to Dawes at the Court of St. James. Others suggested are Frederick W. Peck, Republican national committeeman from Rhode Island, and William M. Butler of Massachusetts, former chairman of the Republican National Committee.

Administration officials have been endeavoring to induce Ambassador Forbes to remain in Tokio, now regarded a doubly important post by reason of the Manchurian difficulties.

James R. Beverly, attorney-general and second ranking officer in the Porto Rican government, has been spoken of to succeed Roosevelt there.

RELIEF TO PASS, HOOVER TOLD

Washington, Jan. 13 (AP)—Assurance that the House would act on his $2,000,000,000 reconstruction measure by tomorrow night was carried to President Hoover today by Representative Snell of New York, minority leader.

Snell visited the White House just before the House and Senate took up their various phases of the economy program. The Senate will act before it a measure to increase by $728,000,000 the capital of federal land banks.

Snell told Mr. Hoover there was no organized opposition to the reconstruction bill now that under the limitations of debate agreed upon the House would pass it within 36 hours.

Differences between the House and Senate bills, however, may delay final enactment, necessitating a conference to reconcile views.

Ambassador Charles G. Dawes, whose recently resigned, has been mentioned as an administrator, as has been Bernard M. Baruch, New York financier.

HOOVER GIVES DETAILS OF TAX PLAN

Washington, Jan. 13 (AP)—Appearing as the principal witness at the opening of hearings before the Democratic-controlled group that will formulate broader revenue-raising legislation, Secretary Mellon said:

"We are in the midst of a grave emergency. It is essential to raise additional revenue, not just to cover current expenditures, but to maintain unimpaired the credit of the United States government.

"This last objective is of paramount importance to every citizen in the land. It is an indispensable step in our progress toward recovery.

"The losses that will be suffered by every individual and every industry through a continuation of the depression will exceed many times over the amounts to be contributed in additional taxes.

"It is not only the patriotic duty of all to insure the financial stability of the government in times such as these, but the sacrifice demanded—if we desire to put the justification on a lower plane—is amply warranted by considerations of individual self-interest."

RETURN TO 1924 ACT

Mellon said the plan he submitted was generally a return to the taxation existing under the 1924 Revenue Act, twice amended since.

Citing the $903,000,000 deficit last year, and a prospective deficit of $2,123,000,000 this year, Mellon estimated there would be a deficit of $1,417,000,000 in 1933 despite the increase in revenue.

Coming somewhat a surprise to the committee members, the treasury secretary announced that "the administration is determined, with your co-operation, to arrest this borrowing process on June 30 next" in urging the increased taxes in order to prevent an increase in the public debt.

The administration has been borrowing hundreds of millions the last three years.

In addition, he recommended that the new taxes be terminated at the end of two years, when the budget is balanced in 1934.

HUGE DEBT INCREASE

"The greater part of the present fiscal year has already elapsed and it is impossible to avoid a large deficit for this year," Mellon said. "To cover, for the balance of this fiscal year, all expenditures already authorized and appropriated for as well as those called for by the administration's special emergency relief program, will probably require increase in the public debt by $1,500,000,000 less any amounts to be derived in the current year through additional taxation.

"I cannot overemphasize the importance of retrenchment. Without real economy there can be no balanced budget. We are fully justified in calling on the people to make further sacrifice in order to supply their government with adequate revenue, but we are only justified in making this call if at the same time we eliminate every unnecessary expenditure and see to it that just as enforced rigid economy prevails in every home in the land, so must it be observed in every operation of the federal government."

DEFENDS INCOME TAX

After a discussion of the increase in expenditures in this and the last fiscal years due to veterans' activities, emergency construction, and the postal deficit, and the decline in revenue from taxation, Mellon said:

Mellon turned to a defense of his plan to bring in 1,700,000 additional tax payers by lowering the income tax exemptions.

"It is sometimes suggested that our additional revenue requirements can be covered for the most part by increasing the income tax rates applicable to the larger incomes," he said.

"The justification for such a proposal is that in periods of emergency the doctrine of ability to pay should be pushed to the limit.

"Leaving aside the economic question involved, a study of the figures leads to the conclusion that the necessary revenue cannot be derived from this source."

INCREASE IN SURTAXES

An increase by 100 per cent in surtaxes on the big incomes would only net $200,000,000 Mellon said, although he recommended a 40 per cent surtax on incomes in excess of $500,000 and 37 per cent between $100,000 and $200,000, as compared to the present maximum of 20 per cent on incomes in excess of $100,000.

"Many not now taxed are very definitely in a position to make some contribution to the support of government," he continued.

"They should be asked to do so, taking into consideration ability to pay. This basic concept underlies the whole program which the Treasury Department is submitting for your consideration.

"I realize, of course, arguments can be advanced against every increase proposed. But I trust that on this occasion the attitude of taxpayers will be different from that which, knowing human nature, we would expect under normal circumstances."

Cornell Savant, in Senate, Flays "America's Curse of Making Right a Crime"

Washington, Jan. 13 (AP)—Repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment and passage of a law which permits "moderate drinking to replace the present unenforceable and intolerable measure" was urged today by Dr. Graham Lusk, professor of physiology at Cornell University.

Testifying before the Senate committee considering the Bingham 4 per cent beer bill, Dr. Lusk said:

"The introduction of light wines and beer to legitimate sale in this country under the Canadian system will, in my judgment, provoke no injury whatever to the community.

"There is no drunkenness in France, except that of visiting Americans; there is greatly reduced intoxication in England; and our neighbors in Canada are just as fine people, are just as prosperous and honest (they have not had a single bank failure) as we are who have been made the victims of a false philosophy with regard to the regulation of human conduct.

"We have been cursed by making a crime of something which, in the nature of things, is entirely honest and right."

PAYLESS DAYS FOR 5 CITIES

With five Massachusetts cities practically fundless and several others operating only on day to day income, efforts are being pushed today to provide temporary financial relief.

In Chelsea, Revere, Lowell, Lawrence and Chicopee, city treasurers reported that teachers, police, firemen and other city employes had not been paid or would not be paid and in several other cities it was admitted that operation on a going basis depended only on the daily income received.

Mayor John J. Murphy, of Somerville, has already taken a hand in the situation with the filing of a bill providing for a $100,000,000 state bond issue, of which one-fourth would be distributed to cities in a proposed relief action. The bill was filed yesterday by Sen. James C. Scanlan.

Another relief measure was a bill filed by Senator Hurley of Holyoke, which substantially seeks to have the Commonwealth underwrite temporary loans of municipalities.

LOMBARDI HELD IN GANG DEATH

to three months in the House of Correction on an old breaking and entering charge on which he was on probation.

Judge Good made his decision regarding the seven defendants immediately after the close of the final defense arguments this morning, climaxing two days of hearing.

Thomas M. Mahoney, who argued for Lombardi, claimed the police utterly failed to prove his client had any connection with the shooting and said the evidence tended to show the shooting occurred outside, not inside, the C. & F. office.

Lombardi and Congemi were in the C. & F office according to the testimony of Patrolman Patrick J. McCoole, surprise government witness.

SLIM EVIDENCE.

The only mention of Salvitella made during the hearing outside of his actual arrest in a Hanover st. shoe shine shop was McCoole's statement that he saw him entering the building at 317 Hanover st. on the day of the murder.

There was no evidence whatever connecting Cortese with the shooting. Fauci and Coffey were arrested in the building immediately after the shooting, and police said Coffey admitted going there with Gustin and Walsh.

Fights for Son

Mrs. Irving D. Harris, the former Jean Ferris, of New York, who inherited a huge fortune from her grandfather, Claus Spreckles, has received a writ of habeas corpus from her husband directing her to produce their year-old son, John Wakefield Harris, in court, for a hearing to determine his right to see the boy.

PUBLIC WARNED REIGN OF GANG TERROR LOOMS

Police, Last Line of Defense, Must Be Backed, Says a University Instructor

Washington, Jan. 13 (AP)—The American people were warned today by August Vollmer that if they don't give the police proper support they will "break down their only defense against the criminal element."

The Berkeley, Cal., chief of police and professor of police administration at the University of California, in a letter made public by the National Retirement Club for Firemen and Policemen, said:

"No group of men can keep its morale unimpaired indefinitely under such brutally unfair treatment as has been given the police, and a policeman whose morale is bad is a menace to the community.

"But what does the average policeman get? He is denounced by the public, criticized by preachers, ridiculed in the movies, berated by newspapers, and often unsupported by prosecuting officers and judges.

"Though hated by criminals, he is unrewarded by popular applause, kicked around like a football by brainless or crooked politicians, condemned when he enforces the law and dismissed if he doesn't."

Attention, Auto Top Thieves: Return It, or Take the Bolts!

A letter to the Boston Evening American from Frank W. Perry of 20 Gilman ter., Somerville, a man very distressed and perplexed indeed:

"Will the magician who caused the complete top of my car to vanish kindly return the same to me and collect reward of $20 for so doing? No questions will be asked.

"The car, a ——— roadster, 1930 model, was parked on St. Germain st., Boston, near Massachusetts ave., Friday evening, Jan. 8, between the hours of 8 and 10 o'clock.

"If the present possessors of this top persist in keeping it, please call for the three bolts which they so kindly left on the seat, as they are of but slight value without a top to go with them."

Editor G. M. Tucker Dies

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 13 (AP)—Gilbert M. Tucker, former editor in chief of "The Country Gentleman" and the son of its founder, died at his home here today. He was born in this city 87 years ago.

PAYLESS DAYS FOR 5 CITIES

With five Massachusetts cities practically fundless and several others operating only on day to day income, efforts are being pushed today to provide temporary financial relief.

In Chelsea, Revere, Lowell, Lawrence and Chicopee, city treasurers reported that teachers, police, firemen and other city employes had not been paid or would not be paid and in several other cities it was admitted that operation on a going basis depended only on the daily income received.

Mayor John J. Murphy, of Somerville, has already taken a hand in the situation with the filing of a bill providing for a $100,000,000 state bond issue, of which one-fourth would be distributed to cities in a proposed relief action. The bill was filed yesterday by Sen. James C. Scanlan.

Another relief measure was a bill filed by Senator Hurley of Holyoke, which substantially seeks to have the Commonwealth underwrite temporary loans of municipalities.

the state, increased taxes will make the prosperous in America realize that war does not pay. The little people have realized it since 1929.

Rich and poor will be grateful to Dr. William J. O'Shea, superintendent of New York public schools, for his statement that feeding the stomach comes ahead of feeding the mind. Dr. O'Shea asks: "What is the use of teaching arithmetic, geography, history or anything else to children who are hungry or without coats?"

Trying to put knowledge into the heads of hungry children is like putting iron ore into a blast furnace that has no fire.

Some of us are richer than we realize, some in good qualities, others in money.

The late Julius Rosenwald had both. His fortune, it is said, amounts to close to five hundred million dollars. And excepting for what he gave away, he had taken no steps to deprive national or state government of its share through inheritance tax.

The difference between trained fighters, prepared, and the untrained, is shown in a recent "defeat for Japan by China." The Japanese company, nearly wiped out, numbered 60 men. The Chinese that killed all but 10 of them numbered 5000, or nearly 100 to 1.

The population of China is only about six times that of Japan, and the south of China hates the north of China, and vice versa, worse than either hate the Japanese.

BRANDS FRANCE AS DICTATOR

London, Jan. 13—The overthrowing of France as Europe's dictator and British withdrawal from the League of Nations, the tool of the Quai d'Orsay, is advocated today by Arthur A. Baumann, former editor of the Saturday Review.

Baumann, writing in the London Evening Standard, attacks the League violently with:

"It is time this costly and extravagant farce is ended, at least as far as England is concerned. So long as France is the European financial dictator, let her finance this dangerous weapon.

"Let England disassociate herself from the expense and ridicule of disarmament conferences, which America and France defy, and the missions to Palestine and Japan, which are mischievous and ludicrous.

"But now that it is obvious France is using this League for the furtherance of her financial and diplomatic methods of obtaining a hegemony of Europe, it is time the Nationalists under England's lead should have their inning."

Mrs. Caraway Wins by Sweeping Vote

Little Rock, Ark., Jan. 13—Mrs. Hattie W. Caraway, widow of Thaddeus H. Caraway, overwhelmed two "independent" candidates yesterday to become the first woman ever elected to the United States Senate. She will fill out her husband's unexpired term.

Returns from more than two-thirds of the counties gave her 34,121 votes against 436 for Sam D. Carson, self-styled "dirt farmer," and 925 for Rex R. Floyd, son of a former congressman.

CHINA INVOKES KELLOGG PACT

Copyright, 1932, by International News Service

Shanghai, Jan. 13 (INS)—China's reply to the note from U. S. Secretary Stimson supports the American views and in addition asks for an international conference for settlement of the Manchurian controversy.

The note strongly advocates invocation of the nine-power pact guaranteeing Chinese administrative integrity, and declares that without that the Far East is doomed to chaos.

China appeals for settlement of the dispute over Manchuria by arbitration by the signatories of the Kellogg pact.

Chinese Resist Japs' Advance on Jehol

Peiping, China Jan. 13 (AP)—Chinese armies from Shanhaikwan today said Japanese forces advancing on Jehol from three directions had engaged Chinese detachments at several points. Despite a shortage of ammunition, it was said, the Chinese are putting up a stubborn resistance.

TROOPERS JOIN BIG MAN HUNT

State troopers joined police of Dedham and Hyde Park today in an intensive man hunt for James Bowles, 32, elusive fugitive from Dedham jail.

Detected at the injury to a Dedham officer last night, when Bowles eluded capture, police tracked down every known haunt of Bowles and started a search of possible hideouts in the Dedham woods.

His home in Mildred ave., Hyde Park, was under surveillance by police of that station, and those known to have been close to the fugitive were under scrutiny lest they attempt to aid him.

Bowles, who served a little more than a month of a year's sentence for criminal attack, escaped yesterday at the breakfast hour.

A search of nearby woods, Readville car shops and other places where he might find refuge availed police nothing.

He was sighted in East Dedham last night by Patrolman John McCarthy, but fled into an alley.

McCarthy, after firing one shot without effect, stumbled over some rubbish and suffered a painful injury to his ankle.

McCarthy said Bowles had obtained a dark overcoat and was wearing it over the jail uniform. He still wore the light slippers given to jailed men, McCarthy said.

7 GLOUCESTER SEAMEN SAVED

Manteo, N. C., Jan. 13 (AP)—The shaking trawler St. Rita, out of Gloucester, Mass., went aground in a heavy sea early today a half mile south of Paul Gamiel Hill Coast Guard station. Coast guardsmen took off the crew of seven.

The St. Rita was breaking up under the pounding of the waves and coast guardsmen said it probably would be lost.

The St. Rita was commanded by Captain Frank Favalo. The members of the crew were Gerald Rinux, Gasper Lucido, Domnero Parisi, Jack Bincer, Salvatore Conte, Tony Alce, and Joseph Barcelona.

Max Reinhardt Ordered to Pay Wife $700 a Month

Berlin, Jan. 13—A Berlin court yesterday ordered Max Reinhardt to pay Elsa Reima, his actress ex-wife, $700 monthly, disregarding the theatrical impresario's plea that the order will force him into bankruptcy.

Reinhardt won a divorce decree in a Leitich court from his wife in June, 1931. She had previously refused to grant him the divorce, though in his effort to gain one he resorted to practical non-support and took steps to dispossess her of her home. They were married in 1910 and have two children.

Aged Count Apponyi Is Injured in Fall

Budapest, Hungary, Jan. 13—Count Albert Apponyi, aged Royalist statesman of Hungary, had a narrow escape from serious injury last night when he fell on his way to a concert.

The 86-year-old Count, slipping on the sidewalk, attempted to break the fall with his hands but struck his head a severe jolt.

He was given medical attention and a bandage was applied to his head to enable him to proceed to his home.

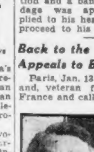
Back to the Farm Appeals to Briand

Paris, Jan. 13 (AP)—Aristide Briand, veteran foreign minister of France and called "the peacemaker of Europe," is going back to his farm at Cocheral in Normandy.

M. Briand has held several posts in French cabinets during the past 25 years and has been premier, as he once said, more times than he could count offhand. He has resigned because of ill health, but he hopes still to carry on lighter duties.



Aristide Briand

He is an inveterate fisherman and angling in the streams near his country seat is likely to occupy much of his time.

REP. PATMAN TO ACCUSE MELLON OF 'CORRUPTION,' 'FRAUD'

TEXAN PUSHES HIS FIGHT TO IMPEACH

Voices Charges Against Treasury Head at the Committee Hearing Today

Washington, Jan. 13 (AP)—Representative Patman, Democrat, Texas, told the House Judiciary Committee today he intended to charge Secretary Mellon with fraud and corruption in office.

Appearing in behalf of his resolution to impeach the Treasury head, Patman was asked whether he intended to charge "corruption, fraud, or malfeasance in office."

"Before I get through I will do it" Patman replied.

"I not only allege he has been indirectly concerned in carrying on business, but I believe I can prove that he has directly concerned himself in carrying on that business."

Patman said this was forbidden by federal laws. He seeks Mellon's impeachment on the ground he has violated this statute.

FEW ARE PRESENT

Only a few spectators appeared in the big committee room as the group began its consideration of the charges. The man Patman is seeking to impeach was before the House ways and means committee, a little way down the corridor on the same floor, to argue for the adoption of the administration's tax increase program.

Two representatives of Mellon, however, were before the judiciary committee to represent him.

One was Alexander W. Gregg, former solicitor of the treasury internal revenue bureau; the other was D. D. Shepard, an attorney from Pittsburgh, Mellon's home.

UP TO MELLON

Patman first suggested that Gregg open the testimony.

"It is my understanding that representatives of Secretary Mellon have interposed what in law would be known as a demurrer," the Texan said. "It would seem to me that the burden of proof rests on those desiring."

HARVARD STAFF ASKED TO AID RELIEF FUND

Faculty and Employes Are Urged to Assist Jobless Ranks in Cambridge

In an appeal signed by five professors, faculty members and employes of Harvard University today were asked to contribute to the fund of the Cambridge unemployment relief committee.

The five professors, E. H. Hall, T. N. Carver, C. W. Kilham, Calvert Magruder and S. H. Slichter are all members of the city committee.

The Harvard Corporation, official ruling power of the university, said that it had "no objection" to the appeal.

"It seems right that the employes and officers of the largest business establishment in Cambridge—Harvard University—should be given the opportunity to join in this movement," the appeal said.

It then cited the contributions of the Cambridge police, firemen and other large organizations, and pointed out that all should realize the importance of helping others to obtain steady jobs.

MOTHERS ALIKE IN DEFENDING THEIR OWN

Mrs. Fortescue Reverted to Type in Avenging Brutal Attack on Daughter

Charmian London, widow of Jack London, war correspondent, philosopher and famous author of "Call of the Wild" and "White Fang," herself the author of "Our Hawaii," "The Log of the Snark" and a two-volume biography of Jack London, in the following article, written exclusively for Universal Service, gives the viewpoint of a mother on the problem that confronted Mrs. Granville Fortescue and the course she pursued.

By CHARMIAN LONDON

San Francisco, Jan. 13—"For who can tell to what red hell his sightless soul may stray."

So write Oscar Wilde from Reading gaol.

Suddenly, out of a clear sky, I am asked what I, who have borne a daughter, would do if confronted with her unprovoked violation, unspeakable manhandling, by a gang of five men in a quiet street of a peaceable community. Only God knows what I would do—what would I not do!

PROTECT THEIR OWN

We hear that Mrs. Grace Hubbard Fortescue of Washington and New York has done, together with her son-in-law, Lieut. Thomas H. Massie, and two enlisted men. This in punishment of the grisly tragedy which overtook the young Thalia, her daughter, his wife, in Honolulu.

Yet what have mothers done before this—mothers of all bloods and stations? They have protected their daughters wherever possible, or, failing that, have avenged them according to breed and nature.

On the one hand I suppose, boiled down to a question of keeping one's head and waiting for the process of law, or going quite berserk, revolting mothers have disregarding law's delay and findings of psychologists upon the motive of plunderers.

In rare instances, mothers would seem to have done both—kept their heads and with parent or liberation exacted the supreme penalty from an outlaw carried out to the letter the old mosaic formula.

MOTHERS ARE ALIKE

Get down to first principles: The protection of our own is a first principle, more primitive, perforce, than the clearing of ways ancient and modern at the drop of a hat, or, at blow or mere scratch, a personal fight even to the death.

Animal mothers fend for their young with tooth and nail and hoof. Human mothers have ennobled themselves by heroic defense of offspring.

Civilization with its laws as thin as its thinnest skin which the quick

PERU'S 'CONSUL' DOES FADEOUT

All was quiet in a Peruvian way in Boston today, the fiery Señor Mariano Loss Lomer, self-styled good-will agent and Peruvian consul-general in New England, having vanished from his customary haunts.

The senor disappeared into the somewhere at an early hour today after visiting the Boston Evening American's office and inviting the night staff members to drop their labors and be his guests at a predawn breakfast on Boston Common.

Because of the press of work, however, this invitation failed to fall on fallow ground—and the senor stepped out into the darkness and was apparently lost as completely as if in his own towering Andes.

Before vanishing, the senor announced that he had sent into his upncle, the secretary of state in Peru, Senor Lomer's resignation as consul-general in New England.

Lumber Dealer Kills Wife

Warren, O., Jan. 13 (AP)—Archer F. Kniesly, lumber dealer and prominent clubman, today shot and killed his wife as she walked into the lobby of a downtown building. Police believe domestic troubles prompted the shooting.

189 LAWRENCE DIVES CLOSED

Lawrence, Jan. 13—There are 189 speakeasies in Lawrence—but they are all closed now—according to a statement today by Commissioner of Public Safety Galvin.

When Galvin took office a week ago he ordered patrolmen in his department to report every place on his beat where liquor was being trafficked in illegally, and he ordered also that every place be warned to close.

These places were exposed by the Masked Reporter of the Boston Evening American.

Galvin's order declared he would hold every police officer responsible for conditions on his beat, and that the public safety commissioner would accept no excuses.

As a result of the survey and police reports, he said, he will make no changes now in the police department, and any changes that may come will depend upon the manner in which his orders are carried out.

BIG GUARD FOR CHILD SLAYER

Cincinnati, Jan. 13 (AP)—Twenty deputy sheriffs guarded the courtroom today during the appearance of Charles Bischoff, 45, confessed kidnaper-slayer of six-year-old Marian McLean. At the same time authorities sought to determine whether he had slain other children.

Shortly after Bischoff was indicted yesterday for first degree murder, investigators dug up bones in a cellar where Marian's body was found.

Police recalled that two little girls mysteriously disappeared here in 1919 and 1921, and that no trace of them ever was found.

Bischoff denied he ever had attempted to entice or injure any child except the McLean girl.

WALSH PRESSES MAGOON PROBE

With Senator Walsh in Washington demanding an explanation of the retention of Victor L. Magoon in the federal employ after his long criminal record became known, the case of Magoon was again under deliberation by the federal grand jury with that of Louis Skaff.

Magoon, a postal clerk, and Skiff, a truck driver, are charged with the $250,000 mail robbery New Year's eve. Both are declared by police and postal inspectors to have confessed.

Following the purported confessions, it was revealed that Magoon had a criminal record, including participation in a previous postal robbery in Barre.

It was revealed also that Postmaster Xavier A. Delisle had suspended Magoon a number of months ago on instructions of his record, but reinstated him when political pressure was brought to bear.

ERIN EXECUTES AMERICAN

Belfast, Northern Ireland, Jan. 13—Eddie Cullen, young American, was hanged early today for the killing of Achmet Musa, a Turk engaged in promotion work for the Zaro Agha, reputed to be one of the oldest men in the world.

Friends in the United States and elsewhere made strenuous efforts to save Ulene. An appeal was denied on New Year's day. The attorney-general refused consent to carry the appeal to the House of Lords.

During the last day or two Cullens was attended by Rabbi Schachter, Jewish leader of Belfast. The young man was in good spirits, preserved a philosophic calm, smoked incessantly and regaled warders with stories of Hollywood, where he once worked.

Cullens walked bravely to the scaffold and maintained his calm to the end.

Norway's Tariff Up

Oslo, Jan. 13 (INS)—A bill increasing customs duties by 28 per cent was passed by the Storthing (Norwegian Parliament) today. Specific tariffs on coffee and sugar were increased by 15 per cent.

LACK OF FUNDS HITS PATIENTS

Ten little patients of the Prendergast Preventorium, Harvard st., Mattapan, have had to forego treatment for lack of funds, it was learned today.

A sharp reduction in the sale of Christmas seals has prevented the Boston Tuberculosis Association from housing the ten children until more funds are contributed.

The announcement came today from Dr. John R. Hawes, 2d, who is president of the association and chairman of its executive committee.

Since the 10 children were discharged last Sunday, many of them have written pathetic letters. Dr. Hawes said, pleading for a renewal of treatment at the health camp.

Between 20 and 30 patients are receiving treatment yet at the camp, but the sales that fell $8000 below those of last year barred the treatment of the others.

The preventorium is in charge of Miss Sarah J. Williams, matron and nurse; Miss Iola Spencer, dietician, and Miss Elizabeth Burke, in charge of recreation.

GEN. PRESTON AT ARSENAL

Maj.-Gen. John F. Preston, inspector general of the U. S. Army, made his first tour of inspection in this area today when he visited the Army Base and the Watertown Arsenal.

Under the guidance of Col. Tracy C. Dickinson, commanding officer at the arsenal, Maj.-Gen. Preston inspected buildings and personnel during the morning.

N. E. Wife, Husband Ask Reno Divorces

Reno, Nev., Jan. 13 (INS)—The following divorce complaints were on file today: Frances Louise Jipson vs. Reuben Daniel Jipson of Newport, Me., married in Lincoln Me., 1919; habitus drunkenness and cruelty. Harold M. Edwards vs. Daisy Hope Edwards of Norwood, R. I., married in Fall River, Sept. 17, 1921; desertion and cruelty.

6-CENT MILK AGREED UPON

Approximately 90 per cent of the milk producers of New England have agreed to work together to advance the price of milk to the producer from five to six cents a quart, according to announcement made by Dr. Arthur W. Gilbert, state commissioner of agriculture.

The announcement was made at the close of the second day's conference of New England Governors at the Massachusetts State House.

NEW RACKET TO GET MILLIONS

Chicago, Jan. 13 (AP)—A warning that racketeers are at the point of taking over millions of dollars worth of legitimate business in Chicago was made today by authorities investigating the killing of Benjamin Rosenberg, owner of a dry cleaning concern.

Rosenberg was shot to death in suburban Maywood Monday night.

Rosenberg's death Assistant State's Attorney Duffey declared, was the signal for a new outbreak of warfare in the cleaning and dyeing business.

Racketeers and shop owners alike he said were involved in the recent wave of bombings, acid throwings and sluggings.

TRAILED GIRL TO FIND SUSPECT

Chicago, Jan. 13 (INS)—A blonde secretary acted as the agent through her employer, was arrested and accused of theft and forgery.

Robert C. Darnstone, former president of the H. A. Osgood Company of New York, was arrested by insurance detectives at a hotel here and charged with obtaining $25,000 from his firm by forgery and with profiting to the extent of $60,000 by them.

Darnstone's apprehension was accomplished by the tracing of Miss Lucille Lewis, his secretary, from New York to Chicago. Detectives followed her from one local hotel to another until she went to the one where Darnstone was staying.

KLAN MUSKETEERS ROOTING PROSPERITY HOME

No. 1, Simmons; No. 2, Clarke, and No. 3, Evans, Turn Wizardry to New Fields

New York, Jan. 13.

"Oh, mama, I want to go to bed," I heard the little kiddie bleat; "You can't," the Klansman's wife said, "For papa's got the lower sheet."

Barnum was a conservative.

When that gentleman whitewashed the ponderous pachyderm and called him a Sacred White Elephant from Siam he was only living up to his petty belief that "there's one born every minute."

What Barnum didn't know about the great American public!

And what (1) "Colonel" William Joseph Simmons. (2) Edward Young Clark, and (3) Dr. H. W. Evans could tell him about the great American boobie!

You will recall that Nos. 1, 2 and 3 were once associated in a receptive financial capacity with what was known as the Ku Klux Klan. To become a Klansman you paid varying sums—$10 and up.

"Barnum was right," said the Klansman bluff. As a chortled in festive glee; "Yes, he was right, but not right enough— Not half so right as me.'

That history was being recalled today when it became known that Nos. 1, 2 and 3 were in New York putting across three ideas that are hoped (by Nos. 1, 2 and 3) to make the Klan's 5,000,000 seem a futile effort of inexperienced promoters.

BENEFACTOR NO. 2

It seems, No. 2—Clarke—became aware that there is a certain dissatisfaction over the way the government is being run. No. 2, always a benefactor (of No. 2), said to himself:

"Something must be done about this."

So, bursting upon a horizon full of pale poppycock came the Esskaye. Seven letters, count them, no more, no less. And every letter means a word—a magical word that will reconstruct this vale of sorrow into something resembling prosperity (for Mr. Clarke).

"What, Mr. Clarke, does Esskaye stand for?" an interested reporter asked.

AH! YOU MAY GUESS!

"Ah, to tell you would be to spoil a $10,000 combined membership drive and guessing contest," No. 2 said. "But you may guess."

The reporter thought. He had an idea.

"Every Sucker Stops, Kicks in and Yowls Eternally?" He suggested.

The reporter didn't win the $10,000 prize. A certain coolness came over the ex-Klegia, but he was willing to explain what the Esskaye will do.

"We've got seven magical letters In a seven kind of word. With that we'll cut the nation's fetters— Gee, our plan's a bird!"

First of all the Esskaye will take varying sums (from $10 up) from interested citizens and make 'em members.

Third, the Esksters may look at Mr. James J. Walker's administration.

PROSPERITY WILL RETURN

Fourth, the Esskapers will call a meeting of the "leading minds of America," who will decide how to put a 1932 model car in front of every house, which will be owned by the occupant, with a turkey in the oven.

"We got the booblic in the Klux And made a lot of dough. Now, we're ready to try our lucks In a clean, new fangled show."

Business is gonna be good, No. 2 says.

However, he isn't as sure as he would like to be. It seems that when a man has a homey of an idea foe making money, he has imitators. Nos. 1 (Simmons) and 3 (Evans) also are putting ideas across. No. 1 with the "White Band" and No. 3 with something that isn't divulged as yet.

JUST PUBLICITY SHY.

Clark, who has evaded the public prince since 1924, when he paid a $5000 fine for transporting a woman across a state line for immoral purposes, is holding out at the Pennsylvania Hotel.

Oh, yes, Clarke is willing to take anybody's money—the Esskaydoodlebugs being open to Jews, Catholics and Protestants.

PSYCHIC AMAZES EINSTEIN

Palm Springs, Cal., Jan. 13 (INS)—Blue electric sparks are the aura of Dr. Albert Einstein.

Forsaking research in Pasadena to rest in this colorful community, Dr. and Frau Einstein spent several hours with Miss Gene Dennis, a psychic.

"She told me things no one possibly could know," Dr. Einstein said of Miss Dennis, "and she demonstrated to me she had a power to do things I can't explain at this time. It was miraculous indeed."

JOHNSON HALTS LOAN PROBE

Washington, Jan. 13 (AP)—State department representatives went to Capitol Hill today to answer testimony that they had intervened to influence New York bankers to lend money to Columbia, but the hearing was postponed.

Senator Johnson, Republican, California, asked the Senate Finance committee to delay the hearing until tomorrow to permit him to study correspondence between the National City Co. and the South American government about the loans.

7 CAR SMOKERS FACE COURT

Last minute smokes for seven Fore River workers cost them each a day's pay and a trip to Quincy court today.

They were arrested on the 6:45 a. m. car that leaves Quincy sq. for the shipyards when four plain clothes officers took them for smoking on the car.

All pleaded nolo to charges of violating the board of health rules.

Arresting officers told the court that the "raid" was taged because of complaints from the street car company that the workers ignored signs in the car and refused to heed the warnings of the car operator.

The seven men, who couldn't report for work because of the court trip, were Guy Watson, 33, of Washington st., Bernard Johnson, 37, of Newton st., Otto Peterson, 26, of Revere rd., Gene Dufault, 18, of Hancock st., all Quincy, John Welsh, 37, of Tremont st., Boston, Edward Powers, 43, of Norfolk st., Cambridge, and Walter MacKinney, 26, of Leonard st., Dorchester.

Judge Albert E. Avery filed the cases after he gave warnings against recurrence.

RAIL MEN WILL 'TRADE' PAY CUT FOR JOBS

Chicago, Jan. 13 (AP)—Railway labor chiefs today said they believed resumption of necessary maintenance work by the railroads would quicken the return of prosperity.

Making plans for tomorrow's parley on wage cuts and unemployment relief with heads of railroads, they asserted they would request the carriers to begin such work at once.

Should the railroads agree, labor spokesmen said, the wheels of many industries would begin moving and the carriers themselves would benefit through increased freight tonnage because many supplies would be necessary to repair equipment and rights of way.

They announced they would ask assurance of steady employment for one year for 2,25,000 "necessary" workers, claiming this would remove fear of jobless, restore confidence and thereby release $2,000,000 in purchasing power now held back by uncertainty.

The union men indicated this week they would be willing to accept the 10 per cent wage cut proposed by the railroads if an estimated $250,000,000 obtained in that manner would be used to start the maintenance work and relieve unemployment distress among the rail workers.

THEATER BOMB CALLED LIQUOR

Kansas City, Jan. 11 (AP)—Three motion picture operators and John Edward Gillespie, 22, ex-convict, were held today in connection with the explosion which killed Frank Alexander, janitor, in the Midland Theater.

Detectives quoted Gillespie as saying he had placed a package under the balcony of the theater that night under orders of Ermal Jay Lime, 34, president of the Sound Projectionists' Association.

Lime, E. M. Evans, 40, business agent of the association, a local organization, and R. H. Dean, 29, former secretary, are under arrest.

Gillespie said he had been told that the package contained liquor and that it was to be picked up by someone else.

THREE KILLED IN TORNADO

Birmingham, Ala., Jan. 13 (AP)—Three known dead, more than 125 injured and thousands of dollars of property damage today were left in the wake of a tornado that whipped across five counties in Alabama and Mississippi.

New Hamilton, Miss., one of the first towns struck, was virtually demolished. It reported one dead and approximately 100 injured.

Mrs. Frank Simmons was killed when her home was razed. Near New Hamilton there was considerable damage and several injured were reported at Oklahoma, Miss.

Forty homes were destroyed at Moundville, Ala., where an unidentified man was killed and eight others injured. A second man was killed and 12 persons injured at Faunsdale, Ala.

Court Backs Ousting of Malden Policeman

Removal of Patrolman John G. Cronin, of the Malden police, by Police Commissioner Artemas B. Sweezey was affirmed by Judge Lawrence G. Brooks after hearings.

Judge Brooks found that Commissioner Sweezey might justifiably have concluded that Cronin did not properly perform his duty in leaving the scene without arresting, or attempting to arrest, persons responsible for a disturbance.

Alex Laid It on the Line

—By Arthur "Bugs" Baer—

When Andy Mellon hung a wreath on Alexander Hamilton it was a reminder that all international financiers are saying it with flowers—

Alex was the first Secretary of the Treasury at a time when we had scored two great victories. We not only had won a war but we had borrowed plenty.

Our credit was about as hot as the north side of a hill in a blizzard. We were just a young republic struggling to keep its head above the amendments and Europe trusted us about as far as you could throw clam chowder with a fork.

But Alex managed to get his little red mittens on some coin by mortgaging the 3 homestead and loaning the side of the barn for a liver pill ad.

Did Europe allow us to yodel off those war debts? Now it's your turn to tail one.

We paid off to the last toothbitten and earmarked dime.

We established a bad precedent by paying for our first war. Now they expect us to pay for everybody's.

POINT PLAY IS TOLD BY MRS. CULBERTSON

Following is the second article by Josephine Culbertson, wife of Ely Culbertson, analyzing brilliant plays, the glaring mistakes and the general significance of the recent "bridge battle of the century".

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

Written Especially for the Boston Evening American

New York, Jan. 12—Figures, instead of being dull and uninteresting as many people assume them to be, are really vital with life, particularly when they are the record of some event in which you have taken a prominent part, or in which you are greatly interested.

It is not surprising then that I spent a great deal of my time since the conclusion of the 150-rubber match between my husband and Sidney S. Lenz to test the approach-forcing and official systems of contract bidding in a close analysis of the figures of the match and in drawing conclusions from them.

With cards so evenly divided as the cards in this match are, there must be a logical explanation of the decisive victory of my husband and his partners. Although our opponents held only 1¼ honor tricks less than we did in the 279 hands played, our score was 8940 points greater.

38 MORE ACES

Taking the aces and kings as measuring sticks, the balance, if anything, was in their favor. We held 1745 aces and they 1771. We held 1775 kings and they 1741. Thus it will be seen that they held 26 more aces than we did, while we had 34 more kings. Resolving this to the measuring standards of the official system, on this basis they had nine more high card tricks than we held.

The explanation is not to be found in the number of rubbers won. Here the difference was only four. We won 77 rubbers and they won 73. So the reason cannot be found so near the surface.

The basic reason as disclosed by a study of the hands, is the one which brought about the match, namely, the contention that the methods of bidding advocated in the official system are not effective. The figures in the contract are not effective because they resulted in winning small rubbers and losing large ones. In other words, our opponents did not effectively use the penalty double.

SUCCESSFUL BATTLE

The figures disclosed that of rubbers won with 1500 points or more, we won eight, while our opponents won only four. Of rubbers between 1000 and 1500, the score was almost even, while on rubbers between 100 points and 500 points Lenz and his partners had taken 16 to 12 scored by us.

Of the rubbers with a score of less than 100 points, we had won two and our opponents one. Quite often a score so nearly even as this indicates a successful battle on the part of the winner against long-continued losing cards, and this is certainly the case with the two rubbers of that score won by us.

Another weakness of the official system is disclosed in the figures which show that each side during the match undertook and completed 273 successful contracts. However, contracts undertaken by our opponents were defeated 166 times by us, while we were defeated only 142 times.

ACCURACY IN BIDDING.

The weakness of the system used by our opponents is strikingly illustrated in the second of the 134th rubber, they having scored a game on the first hand. The hand and bidding were:

NORTH (Lenz)
♠—K Q 4 3
◇—A K J 10 7 6
♣—3

WEST (Culbertson) ♠—J 8 7 2 ♡—5 3 ◇—9 ♣—10 9 4 6 5

EAST (Mrs. Culberta'n) ♠—A 6 5 ♡—A K 10 7 3 ◇—Q 5 3 ♣—7 5

SOUTH (Com. Liggett) ♠—10 9 ♡—Q 8 6 ◇—8 4 2 ♣—A K Q J 8

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
	Pass	1 Diam'd	1 Spade
2 Clube	Pass	3 Diam'ds	Pass
3 N. T.	Pass	3 Spades	Pass
4 Diam'ds	Pass	5 Diam'ds	Double
Pass	Pass	Pass

Ely consistantly passed throughout the bidding. My only contribution to the bidding was an overcall of Mr. Lenz's one diamond. After that our opponents proceeded to bid up to five diamonds, which I doubled, and we defeated the bid by 600 points. Certainly, had the approach forcing system been used by them, no such contract would have been undertaken with the hope of fulfilling it.

IT WAS 'GRANDMA' AT 28

Birth certificates prove the story that Mrs. Katherine Di Ianni, of Hanover st., was a grandmother when but 28 years of age. She was 11, although she passed as 16, when she married. Her daughter, Katy, married a second cousin, also named Di Ianni, when she was 15 and gave birth to a first child a year later. Another daughter, Mrs. Mary Simboli, is shown above with her boy. She was married when 15. The smiling girl is Rita Fusco, grandchild of Mrs. Di Ianni. (Staff photo.)

GRANDMOTHER WED WHEN 11

Beating all records for young grandmothers, Mrs. Catherine Di Ianni of Hanover st., North End, today revealed that she was a grandmother at the age of 28. She is now nearly 34 and has three married daughters and two sons.

When only 11 years old, Mrs. Di Ianni married in New York city, giving her age as 16. At 12 years old she had her first child, now Mrs. Katy Di Ianni, who married a second cousin at 15, and at the age of 16 had a baby girl. Mrs. Di Ianni the elder then was a grandmother at 28.

Besides Mrs. Katy Di Ianni, the other married daughters are Mrs. Mary Simboli, 21, who married at 15, and had a baby at 16, and Mrs. Theresa Fusco, 19, who married at 15, also, and had a child at 16.

Mrs. Catherine Di Ianni's first husband died. Her second husband, Joseph, 30, three years her junior, is employed as a laborer.

N.Y. Artist Sues Wife for Divorce in Reno

Reno, Nev., Jan. 13 (INS)—Clifford L. Adams, New York artist, today filed suit to divorce Inez Eleanor Bate Addams, also an artist, of London.

Addams charges cruelty and said he and Mrs. Addams had been separated more than five years. They were married in Dublin, June 27, 1900.

Horace Kennedy filed suit against Florence Kennedy of Hollywood. He charged cruelty. They were married July 20, 1897, in Halifax, N. S.

BRITISH SEIZE INDIA OFFICES

New Delhi, Jan. 13—British police today seized the central office building of the Indian Nationalist Congress at Allahabad, tore down the Congress flag and hoisted the Union Jack.

Other buildings and houses owned by the Congress were seized and the inmates evicted.

In Bombay the government tightened its grip on the press, warning all newspapers that publication of messages from imprisoned Nationalists, exaggerated reports of political events, immoderate criticism of the government, or even of photographs of Congress Party activities will bring penalties up to two years imprisonment

PARTY REVOLTS ARE AIMED AT HOOVER ONLY

By LOU S SEIBOLD.

Washington, Jan. 13 — The troubled leaders of Mr. Hoover's party have made an important discovery. Progressing party revolts are not directed at their party, but against Mr. Hoover himself.

This revelation (long since established in the public mind) explains the persistence in trying to dig up another candidate.

Charles G. Dawes is the latest beneficiary of developing plans and hopes. His renunciation of friendly gestures with a characteristic "damn nonsense" is not accepted at face value. Neither is the rather positive and convincing veto of Calvin Coolidge.

COOLIDGE OR DAWES

Mr. Dawes' retirement as ambassador to Great Britain made him natural game for worried Republican leaders who are as firmly convinced as ever that Mr. Hoover cannot be re-elected.

These men insist that, if the pressure is high-powered enough, Mr. Dawes will be compelled to come to the aid of his party. They propose to apply pressure to convince him he is the one man available to fill the bill—next to Mr. Coolidge.

As far as the Northampton philosopher is concerned, Republicans of all shades of opinion are absolutely certain that it would be "all over but the shouting" if Mr. Coolidge would heed their Macedonian cry.

HOOVER "WAKING UP"

Wherefore, the impressive army of the Republican pessimists propose to leave no stone unturned to induce Mr. Coolidge to change his mind. The prospects for doing so are not very bright.

Democratic leaders are profuse in their praises of the "unselfish and patriotic" stand of Mr. Coolidge. What they really mean is that they don't want him to run.

Mr. Hoover's present position is somewhat uncomfortable. He must know by this time that the great majority of the leaders of his party would rather have some other candidate.

For the first time, Mr. Hoover appears to have properly assayed the situation in his own party. Senators and other important party men who have discussed the matter with him assert that he is "beginning to wake up."

SIGNS CONFESSION

CHARLES BISCHOFF SHERIFF RUTTERFIELD

2 WOMEN HELD FOR FLOGGING GIRL 8 HOURS

New York, Jan. 13 (INS)—The strange torture of Eva Novakowski, a 12-year-old waif who accuses a prominent Queens social worker and her aged mother of brutally beating her with a leather strap, today aroused the quiet, domestic Bilssville section of Long Island city.

Eva's two guardians, whom she charges with torturing her, are free in $2000 bail each. They are Mrs. Louise Vogelsang, 26, and her mother, Mrs. Antoinette Lahanowski, 65. They say they are the victims of a plot.

The case was brought to the attention of the Children's Society by neighbors. Detective John P. Werle, one of those who investigated, was told by Eva that she was accused of stealing $125 from Mrs. Vogelsang and $5 from a neighbor. When she denied the theft, the child tearfully related, the women beat her with a leather strap until she admitted taking the $5.

Eva said the women took turns in beating her continuously for almost eight hours.

"We merely reprimanded her," said Mrs. Vogelsang.

Eva's mother, police were told, is in a hospital for the mentally incompetent. Her father died in a fire.

WANTS TO BE FLIER

Maurice Chevalier wanted the French solitude and his wife, Yvonne, wanted French food, as they arrived in San Francisco by plane, from Los Angeles, and Chevalier expressed a desire to become an airplane pilot. This was Chevalier's first air trip and he is to start on his tour. (International Newsreel photo.)

2 CONFESS BIG ANTIQUE BREAK

Keene, N. H., Jan. 13 (AP)—The arrest of two youths at Greenfield, Mass., today has led to the discovery of the theft of $5000 worth of antique furniture from the summer residence at Spofford Lake of Morris Friedsam, New York silk merchant and antique collector.

The youths are Frank Langley and Austin Roby of Greenfield.

The burglary was discovered by caretakers last night and Deputy Sheriff Tucker went to Greenfield, where Langley and Roby were said to have confessed.

They told Tucker, he said, that they had disposed of the furniture in Albany and Poughkeepsie, N. Y., and at Hartford, Danbury and Bristol, Ct.

753 Hedgehogs Net $150, So N. H. Champ's After 'Cats'

Keene, N. H., Jan. 13 (AP)—New England's hedgehog killing champion, Sidney "Injun" Howard, is planning on thinning out the bobcats and "puttin' the State treasurer in bankruptcy."

At 20 cents apiece, the obligatory bounty, the 753 hedgehogs slain by "Injun Sid" in the past few weeks have netted him $150.60.

Since he's thinking of going after bobcats, New Hampshire's municipal officials are breathing easier, because though the bobcat bounty is $20 a scalp as compared with the hedgehog's 20 cents, there's a joker in the statute.

On hedgehogs each municipality must pay cash and collect from the State. For bobcats, the Fish and Game Department pays while town and city treasurers look on and sympathize.

Sid lives in a one-room shack "back o' the Beech Hill road" with three dogs, and in spite of his 58 years, he's lean and athletic. His rise to fame began in mid-December when he ambled into the city clerk's office here with 252 hedgehog heads.

Twenty-three days later he had 501 hedgehog heads and the clerk paid $100.20.

$27,000 AWARD FOR WIDOW

New York, Jan. 13—A jury verdict of $27,209 was returned in favor of Mrs. Nellie O. Fernald of Ayer, Mass., in her action against the Boston & Maine Railroad Company for the death of her husband, in the United States district court for the southern district.

Mrs. Fernald's husband was killed while employed by the railroad as a car inspector.

He met his death on March 1, 1930, when struck by a train in the railroad yard at Ayer, Mass.

NAMES OF "BAD MEN" POLICE SECRET

The identity of the 54 so-called "bad men" whom Commissioner Hultman, in his report to Governor Ely, said were picked up by the police in the round-up of speakeasy patrons on New Year's Eve, remained a mystery today.

Previous to the commissioner's report the police had said claim to arresting only 16 persons during the spectacular raids who had records of any kind.

COMMISSIONER SILENT

Concerning the identity of the 54 and the seriousness of the offenses which gave them their records Commissioner Hultman said last night that he was not prepared to divulge that information. He said he would take the matter under consideration.

At the State House Governor Ely released a summary of the police commissioner's report without comment. In the report the commissioner sought to justify the arrest, fingerprinting and photographing of the 151 patrons taken on the grounds that:

"The raids were made in connection with the hunt for the slayers of men who had been connected with liquor traffic.

"Barricaded speakeasies" are places where criminals of all kinds, even murderers, congregate.

DEFENDS FINGERPRINTS

The speakeasy patrons were arrested, fingerprinted and photographed in order to identify any imported gangsters who were reported in the city for the purpose of avenging Colin Justin killings.

Fifty-four of those arrested had court records

The records of these 54 give police the right to expect to find murderers and their accomplices in speakeasies.

On the nights the raids were made the rumored outbursts of gang-war did not take place.

SUGAR TRADE TO REVIVE IN YEAR

New York, Jan. 13 (AP)—Thomas L. Chadbourne, author of the Chadbourne plan to restore sugar prosperity, returned today from conferences in Europe expressing confidence that "another year should see the sugar business out of the woods."

"I am quite certain that further limitations upon both export and production, which the situation now obviously requires, will be made," he declared.

Mr. Chadbourne, a New York lawyer, went to Europe for the meeting of the International Sugar Council in Paris. Last month the council adjourned "to assemble additional data required to enable the council to make decisions on the vital questions remaining unsettled."

Mr. Chadbourne said these questions revolve around the problem of what further limitations and sugar production is necessary, in view of the present economic situation in order to establish an equilibrium between world supply and demand.

is touched, whether defending the heart of civilization the home or boundary lines, everything goes by the board before the natural ides or passion of defense.

When something we care most for by nature or ingrained custom is imperiled or overtaken, there is no length to which we will not go, and no punishment for a mother's forthright vengeance will ever make any difference to other mothers in like extremity. Has it ever made any difference?

Ill-tidings of late have been drifting up from my Hawaii, fair Hawaii, of peace and gentle inhabitants. Land of bright and charming Hawaiian friends, proved friends Land of my Waikiki House Without a Key—anthropist that voices its own untroubled meaning.

To one who has known Hawaii for years, unbelievable tidings of late. Alarming frequency of robbery and incredible assault—horrid news that would surely seem to have come from great mainland white cities overridden with gangsterism.

What can such news have to do with our tranquil Isles—with Honolulu, safest of cities" And Hawaiians themselves implicated—I rub my eyes and shake myself.

How much, I question, is there of outland blood in these alleged violent ones with Hawaiian names ringing true to my accustomed ear? For Kaahawai, dead for his crime, in his picture looks Hawaiian, all but the eyes. They are the eyes of a mongrel, with neither sympathy nor pride. Yet his name is true Hawaiian.

Polynesians, from Hawaii to Samoa, have been singularly unnoted for misdemeanors of this sort, even, I must add, after long association with the whites. Robbery, murder, rapine—up to now report of such goings on would merely amuse one who has known them.

But now worse has come, the worst, featuring an alleged Hawaiian who was far from the least violent of a violent five attackers of a white woman. The facts are indisputable, it seems. The most heinous imaginable thing has come to pass—in the very streets where a woman wandering alone has heretofore been as safe as in her own keyless home.

BLEND OF BLOODS

What has happened to this insular territory of ours—a thousand factors rush to my mind, from observation of the old, old results, repeated down the centuries of white occupation.

Have we on soon blasted what we perhaps strove to benefit in our blind intention of reforming inimical peoples? Finally, as usual the effects of our more vicious examples of "civilization . . outnumbering the intended benefits? And, worse of all, strange unwanted breeds have bn imprnt to labo- in the fields—sometimes the sweepings of foreign tropical countries.

Not so many years ago when Iwilei, the red light district of Honolulu was closed, there were serious misgivings on the part of certain wise ones upon the ultimate effect.

This, considering that Oahu harbors a great army post and naval station. When the Twenty-fifth, the excellent Negro regiment, was ordered to Honolulu there was downright distress among the friends of Hawaii and the Hawaiians and their welfare

It must be remembered that the Hawaiians are not negroid, but Polynesian—of Aryan origin, as we.

DOUBTS HER ACTION

Ponder that. The Negro is pure and strong. But the unavoidable risk of infusing Hawaii's un-negroid blood with the negroid strain was repellant to us who cared for the purity of our newly annexed territory.

And so, confronted suddenly out of a life of order and peace with such grisly tragedy this unfortunate wife and husband, I do not know what I should do. Only God knows. Again,

"For who can tell to what red hell prosecution already has taken depositions of 23 witnesses.

HURT BY PUBLICITY

Estimating the effect of the publicity upon Honolulu as a playground for the social elite, L. R. Thurston, president of the Honolulu Advertiser, told directors of the Chamber of Commerce that it would take years to counteract the influence of the affair.

The Royal Hawaiian Hotel, leading hostelry, announced it had received cancellations of tourist reservations and numerous inquiries concerning possible "race riots."

Charges before a House sub-committee in Washington that the territorial judge seemingly gave the jury a "thinly veiled instruction to acquit" the five men tried on charges of attacking Mrs. Massie were denied by the prosecutor.

The jury disagreed, six to six, and the defendants were reporting daily, awaiting retrial, when Kahahawai was abducted from the courtroom last Friday and shot to death.

No comment was forthcoming from Judge A. E. Steadman, who resigned his judgeship recently to become head of a trust company.

Atty. Montgomery Winn of the defense counsel said it was for Mrs. Fortescue that he would seek the only delay the defense desires. He said he wants the case postponed until her husband may be with her.

Lieut. Massie remains calm, Winn said.

Enlisted men from army and navy posts near Honolulu were permitted to come into the city after they had been confined to quarters for three days as a result of tension between military and civil elements.

American Legion officials informed Maj. Gordon C. Ross, head of territorial police, that they believed emergency patrols of legion members were no longer necessary.

CONGRESSMEN THANK HEARST FOR TAX AID

Washington, Jan. 13—William Randolph Hearst today was lauded by members of Congress for his public service in sending a large group of Senators and representatives to Canada last November to study the sales tax system there.

A committee representing the congressional party sent a letter to the publisher declaring that the trip had been of great benefit to them in their studies of public affairs and thanking him for making the expedition possible.

Signing the letter on behalf of the 52 Senators and representatives who made the trip were Senators William H. King (D) of Utah and Thomas P. Gore (D) of Oklahoma and Representatives Anning S. Prall (D) of New York, Arthur Free (R) of California and Edgar Howard (D) of Nebraska.

This letter together with a resume of the sojourn in Canada, including complete proceedings of a meeting held by the delegation with high Canadian officials on the sales tax, was inserted in the congressional record today.

The letter sent on behalf of the Congressional party follows:

"Dear Mr. Hearst:

"In the diminishing revenues and increasing expenditures of the federal government have sharply challenged the attention of the American people to the imperative necessity—if the federal budget is to be balanced—of obtaining additional revenue. Various plans have been suggested to obtain such additional revenue. • •

HEAVY RESPONSIBILITY

"As we are advised, you believed that study of the revenue laws and the fiscal system of Canada, with special reference to the sales tax, might be of advantage to those charged with the duty of enacting laws to meet the needs of our national government.

"Accordingly, you afforded the members of the two Houses of Congress an opportunity, as your guests, to visit the Dominion of Canada, in order that they might obtain first-hand information concerning its revenue laws and fiscal policies, and particularly the workings of the sales tax and its efficacy as a revenue producer. • • • • •

CONFER WITH LEADERS.

"Conferences were held with leading government officials, bankers, business men and persons in various walks of life concerning Canada's system of taxation and sources of revenue, particularly the provisions and workings of the sales tax and the attitude of the people toward the same.

"While the primary purpose of the visit to Canada was to study the sales tax system and to obtain information as to its availability and deficiency in meeting revenue needs of our national government, opportunities were afforded of learning of the progress and development of our neighboring country, its almost limitless resources and its fine and progressive people.

"During our sojourn in Canada a hearty and cordial welcome was extended to us. • • • •

"We are not unaware of your efforts to promote friendly relations between these two countries, separated only by an invisible line 3000 miles in length.

"In conclusion, we express our appreciation of the public spirit which impelled you to extend to us an invitation to visit Canada.

"At the end of our journey we met and adopted a resolution thanking you for the opportunity afforded us of visiting our neighboring friends, and of obtaining information which we believe will be of value to us in meeting the responsibilities before us. At this meeting the undersigned were appointed a committee to present this communication to you."

WHERE FLAMES STARTED

SHORE GARDENS AT NANTASKET HIT BY FIRE

Two firemen were slightly injured in fighting a disastrous blaze which damaged the Shore Gardens, famous Nantasket Beach dancing and dining establishment, causing damage estimated at $7500 early today.

The loss at first was estimated as high as $50,000 but upon a careful check by Fire Chief Henry J. Stevens of Hull the estimate was reduced.

The two upper stories of the three-story structure were burned out and heavy damage was done to the first floor, where elaborate decorations and fixtures were swept by the flames.

COTTAGES MENACED

Neighboring cottages were also threatened for a time as sparks, fanned by a stiff wind, were carried in all directions. Several small roof fires started but were immediately extinguished by the firemen.

Frank Walsh and Harrison Gardner, of the Hull fire department, both suffered slight injuries and were taken to their homes after treatment.

WIND FANS FLAMES

As far as could be learned the fire started in the second floor of the building over the main dance hall. The blaze was fanned by high winds and spread quickly up to the third floor and downstairs.

The place was the scene of a disastrous blaze on the day before Labor Day last year when the entire rear of the building was destroyed with damage estimated at $50,000. It is owned by the New York Hotel and Restaurant Company, of New York.

TAX ASSN. FOR GOVERNMENT ECONOMY

Municipal and state expenditures must be drastically reduced and the tax burden on industry and real estate lifted to bring about a return of prosperity, according to a report to the board of directors of the Massachusetts Tax Association by the executive committee.

Cities "inflated" in boom years have not shown any tendency to deflate, the committee asserted. The association urges that expenditures and borrowings of municipalities be subjected by legislation to stricter state supervision.

It also favors a sliding poll tax rate for municipalities, depending on the expenditures. Another of the association's measures calls for the increase of the gasoline tax to four cents, to be distributed for highway improvements.

The association was told that consumption, production, cost of production, commercial credits and commodity prices have been reduced but that retail prices, wages and taxes have not been deflated to the same degree.

"During the last 10 years an economic theory has grown up that the higher the wages, the greater the prosperity, owing to increased purchasing power, "the report declared." Carried beyond the point of reason that theory has been proved to be fallacious. Whether drastic adjustment should be made in wages and to what extent, must be left to employers and employes, the latter naturally being represented in substantial part by labor unions. We trust this problem will be dealt with intelligently and fairly."

STARS TO OPEN STATION WINS

New York, Jan. 13 (INS)—Stars of both broadcast chains will combine in a broadcast salute to the new Station of the Hearst newspapers in New York tomorrow night when the station ceases to be WGBS and becomes WINS.

The change in the station designation signalizes the completion of the first steps in the reorganization and reconstruction of the station by the American Radio Corporation into a leading local station.

The station will use a new transmitter as it introduces many new and novel programs for air listeners on Friday morning.

A special program of the new station will be broadcast from 6:30 to 7:30 p. m., Eastern standard time. Joseph V. Connolly, president of Universal Service, International News Service and King Features Syndicate, Inc., as well as the head of the American Radio News Corporation, will deliver the principal address.

BURKE URGES ECONOMY

"Every appropriation which is asked must stand the test of the question 'Is it necessary?' before it will be recommended by the mayor," Mayor John H. Burke today told department heads of the city government. "Every appropriation which cannot positively be said to be necessary will be cast aside."

Mayor Burke pledged his co-operation to the school committee and declared that education must go forward but that the same standards must be applied in all appropriations for the department.

"We may be harshly criticised by city workers today because we are asking them to contribute 5 per cent of their pay to the city treasury if they receive $3000 or under annually, and 10 per cent if they receive over $3000, but I prophesy that within six months time they will thank us for what we are asking of them," the mayor said.

The mayor says the city will receive $150,000 as a result of these contributions.

STATE PAY CUT PLAN ATTACKED

An attack on the proposed pay cut in the salary of State employes receiving more than $2000 a year, suggested by Governor Ely was made last night by speakers at the sixth annual banquet of the Massachusetts State Engineers' Association at the Copley-Plaza Hotel.

J. A. Eberman, president of the association, declared that the organization is opposed to any pay cut, pointing out that its direct effect on the tax rate will be slight but its indirect effect on spending power will retard recovery from the depression.

The same tone was taken by J. A. Johnston, who presided, who declared that the only remedies seemed to be the poorhouse, and advice to younger men not to enter the government service.

LOUD SPEAKERS AID STUDENTS

If one does good school work and the master wants to spread the news, that's easy in Cambridge.

By the same token, if one has a calldown in store, it's equally easy.

At the Longfellow school in Cambridge, Headmaster George B. Colesworthy has installed an address system that enables him to talk to one, any or all pupils in his charge.

He speaks from a small microphone on his desk and may "tune in" on any class or the entire school.

With the same system the pupils can be entertained with selections on phonograph records or programs from radio stations.

Chief among the programs anticipated by the pupils and teachers alike are the broadcasts of the George Washington bicentennial programs.

A young girl about 17 years old, poorly dressed and half-starved looking, had been gazing wistfully into all windows along upper Tremont st. which displayed food of any kind Monday evening . . . And as we followed her along we felt pretty sure she was one of the low employed-and-hungry girls we've been reading such interesting things about lately . . . We noticed a couple of hangers-around just ahead of her, and being curious to find out how a group of typical Boston street pests would accost her we s. used pretending to be looking at the show display, and heard the following:

"Going my way, babe?" . . .
"Aw, come on—give us a smile." . . .
"What? No smile? Watch me, boys!" . . . And with that one of the Fresh Guys tapped the girl on the arm and magnanimously said, "Listen, kid, come on and fill up on chop suey . . . But don't forget—those who dance must pay th fiddler! . . . Honest, kid, we're awfully sorry for you!"

The other Sidewalk Nuisance shouted with laughter at this and turned with pathetic dignity upon the "man" who was showing off his talent for amateurishness:

"Don't say it with sympathy," she said simply, "say it with beefsteak! . . .

Her accoster turned away and went back to his fellow-insects . . . "Nothin' doin' there," he mumbled, "the dame's hungry!"

"THE GOOD COMPANIONS" PROVES THEATRICAL TREAT

New Show Idea at Shubert

By NICHOLAS YOUNG

The stage, now and then, turns its hand to exceptional things and finds profit in the experience. And so, out of a season chiefly notable for its steady flow of cut and tried drama, fashioned on aged formulae, came "The Good Companions" to the Shubert. In no strict sense could it be called a play, yet its characters moved through sixteen scenes and spoke their lines; one was it musical comedy, although it fairly sizzled with good melody dished up in the best manner of the theater. But it was great entertainment, animated, jolly and overwhelmingly human in its appeal. . . . It was a brand new delight in theatrical entertainment, free from taint, from love triangles and from all the balderdash which the playgoer has come to know so well.

Many of those who have read and enjoyed J. B. Priestly's colorful novel must have wondered how even so adroit an author as he, or even when assisted by that skilled dramatist, Edward Knoblock, could turn "The Good Companions" into an absorbing drama. That this has been done speaks very well for the quality of the book, as well as for the mental agility of the two adapters. A free running narrative of the trials and excitements of a traveling English concert company was its only motif; the daily doings of plain people trying to get along in the world with rather thin resources. As one reads the novel and then sees the play, the transition of these interesting characters from the printed page to living reproductions seems almost too good to be true.

"The Good Companions" was episodical, with the better part of the action skirmishing around the lives of four principals, members of the concert troupe. These were amply acted by English players who might well have been in the homeland taking pot luck in the provinces. The whole secret of that thing we call plot made the enjoyment of the story's personages keener; there were no problems to be solved except that of holding the company together, picking up a square meal and hoping for better days. The Jess Oakroyd of Mr. Priestley's adventurous yarn was played by George Carney. He was alternately a character to love, to pity and frequently to misunderstand. But he was outstanding; his humors were homespun but they stirred your emotions.

Other amiable people caught your eye and even quickened your pulse. Vera Lennox and Hugh Sinclair gave "The Good Companions" its only shade of romance. It is every sign of being genuine, so well did these

Star Talks to Boston Luncheon by Telephone From Hollywood

By HARLEIGH SCHULTZ

Babara Stanwyck refuses to heed any "Verboten" sign when it comes to telephoning across the continent—provided some one else is footing the bill. She said so, yesterday. The occasion followed a preview of her newest picture, "Forbidden," which has its premiere at RKO-Keith's next Friday. At a prosperity luncheon given by Columbia, makers of the film, Miss Stanwyck sent lengthy phone greetings to Boston from Hollywood.

Valerie Taylor

The star spoke entertainingly about pictures, saying the studios were going in for better product, with less exaggeration, the story trend being closer to the realities of life. She showed her sense of humor, as in her reference to the length and expense of her message. She was preceded on the wire by Joe Brandt, president of Columbia, who voiced optimism in the movie industry and business generally. This talk of his, from his office in New York City, was a good one.

Mayor Curley and Joe McCorville and Abe Montagne, those two genial and able pushers of Columbia business in this field were other speakers. McCorville and Montagne were joint hosts to the party, which was held at the Seagladen, in the Westminster.

Helen Gahagan Signed by Radio to Make Film in Hollywood

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Motion Picture Editor Universal Service

Copyright, 1932, by Universal Service, Inc.

Los Angeles, Jan. 13—Oh, these rumors! They get in your hair. For two solid weeks every day we have heard it whispered that David O. Selznick was about to sign Helen Gahagan. We sat right on Dave's doorstep until he actually put the talented young star under contract and we knew we could say, "yes, it's true, Miss Gahagan is to give the movies a tryout."

The performance she gave in "Tonight or Never" the stage play put on the screen by Gloria Swanson, convinces Miss Gahagan to try a chance in any studio. Her contract with Radio calls for one picture with an option for others.

And this, I think, is interesting. A story will be chosen, giving her a chance to sing. Not a musical play, but a play with some music. Melvin Douglas, Miss Gahagan's husband, has been in several pictures and he will play the lead in "The Broken Wing" at Paramount.

The Old Drummers

A return of some of those old money-making Cecil B. De Mille "drammers" is said to be scheduled at Paramount. In the days when Gloria Swanson wore bizarre clothes and curious headdresses, De Mille's pictures topped the records. Other De Mille films, too, scored headlines. His "Ten Commandments" gave Paramount a nice little bank balance and I hear it whispered that he will remake "Ten Commandments" with the present-day New York in the modern sequence. There is also a plan afoot according to a well authenticated rumor, for De Mille to film a story of the present Manchurian situation, the data for which he obtained on his recent trip to Japan.

BETTY COMPSON meeting ROY BRADLEY, local ballroom dancer, at the Biltmore, and signing him as her dancing partner for the Fanchon and Marco tour. PAUL LUKAS and BABY, his pretty wife, off to New York on a holiday. SAM JAFFE on the same train, going East on business. DR. HERBERT KALMUS and MRS. RITA KAUFMAN on the same train. VIRGINIA VALLI, CHARLIE FARRELL, MARY PICKFORD, DOUGLAS FAIRBANKS, the SELMER CHALLIFFS and scores of others, teeing Sunday with the JOHNNY MACK BROWNS, NORMA SHEARER and IRVING THALBERG entertaining with a small dinner party. Speculations rife on what will happen when JOHN HERTZ, financier interested in Paramount, gets here in the latter part of the week. MARION DAVIES taking a rest between pictures. "Polly of the Circus" ready for final cutting. JOBYNA RALSTON and RICHARD ARLEN due back in Hollywood, also LEWIS MILESTONE. That's all today. See you tomorrow!

LADY ISABELLA ANDERSON SAT IN A BOX MONDAY evening to witness the success of her enterprise, Marina, the mermaid play which she wrote and for which Mrs. Quiesian composed the music. Although a little amateurish as was to be expected, the performance was very enjoyable.

The Colonial Theater was filled to capacity and many society playgoers were noted in the audience. Mrs. George R. Agassiz was present to give enthusiastic response to the premiere, she and Mrs. Anderson having been very close friends for years. From Chestnut Hill we saw Mrs. Edward Bigelow and Mrs. Samuel Eliot, two willing workers on the Infant's Hospital committee. The Alvan T. Fullers and Mrs. G. Wood Taylor, sister of Mr. W. O. Taylor, were also noted in the large throng. We wish the play every success.

Friends of the Allan Forbes are delighted to learn their house at Beacon and River sts. is open again and that the Forbeses will reside there for the remainder of the season. Mrs. Forbes has been in the country on account of illness for over a year. The fine old mansion, which has seen many happy days, is one of the few left on the Hill where may be seen the amethyst glass window panes so beautiful and precious. Next year a lovely debutante will step over the portals into Boston society, Miss Phyllis Forbes.

Skiing Popular

QUITE THE SNAPPIEST thing to learn now is professional skiing—how to take the jumps without injuring yourself for life. Crowds of Junior Leaguers and their friends gather at the North Station early Sunday mornings and entrain for the hills of New Hampshire, where the snowfall is the heaviest, taking their lunch along in baskets to be eaten in the open air. It is a colorful sight to see the young debs and past debs in their gay winter skiing costumes, escorted by stalwart boy friends in but slightly less radiant hues, chatting and laughing while they wait for the B. & M. to pull in and then scramble aboard for a day in the snowclad hills.

Latest Styles at St. Moritz

By MABEL MADDEN

St. Moritz, Jan. 13 (US)—Outdoor luncheons when the sun warms the mountain air at noon are the fashionable thing at this winter resort.

Mrs. Helen Kelly, formerly Princess Viora, was seen in a smart red and white ensemble with black velvet toque. Miss Ruth Welsh of New York appeared one morning in a buttoned woolen waist of the very latest chain stitch. It was a jumble of many colors, in which red and orange predominated. The skirt was dark brown.

The evenings are very gay and there are lovely frocks to be seen. Her wonderful pearls, shown off against the reflecting green of her gown, Mrs. Helen Kelly was a dominant figure. Mrs. Thomas Laughlin, of Philadelphia, wore deep red minon; Mrs. E. W. Dupont, of Hollywood, white crepe de chine; Miss Rosie Dolly, white silk;

Among the gayest of the visitors is quite a group from Chicago that includes Miss Elnies Schenck, Miss Helen Nast, Miss Margaret Goehst and Miss Emily Goehst.

BENEFIT FOR FRONTIER NURSING SERVICE

Junior League Ballroom Is Event Scene

The Junior League ballroom will be the scene tomorrow at 1 o'clock of the luncheon given by the Frontier Nursing Service. The object of it, as the MOUNTAIN CRUISE lunch is to bring together the members of the various committees interested in the success of the West Indies cruise which is being forwarded to help those that benefit by the nursing service.

The speaker is to be the Yale University professor of public health, Dr. C. E. A. Winslow. His talk will largely cover much of the wonderful work the service has so successfully accomplished in Virginia. It is among the so-called "poor whites" of that part of the country, living in the mountainous districts, ignorant and entirely uneducated, that this remarkable organization has done so much good.

Several girls from Boston volunteered last year, as have others in the past, to go down there for a certain period and help out. Their work consisted mostly of sometimes riding as much as 40 miles a day through the mountains from one settlement to another, carrying food and other necessary supplies to relieve the utter poverty and often illness found there.

Schools, hospitals and churches have been organized by these unselfish workers, and the campaigning they have successfully put across here in selling passages on this cruise deserves almost as much commendation.

Pope's Social Plan Subject of Lecture

The Rev. John J. Corrigan, S. J., professor of sociology at Boston College, will give the second of a series of talks before the League of Catholic Women at Emmanuel College, the Fenway, on Saturday afternoon.

Fr. Corrigan's subject will be "The Pope's Social Program."

German Consul Will Lecture on China

Here is something new—a lecture given in German. By the way—HOW IS your German these days? The German consul, Baron Kurt von Tippelskirch, will speak tomorrow evening on "My Experiences in China."

This is sponsored by the international institute committee of the Young Women's Christian Association at 190 Beacon st., where the lecture will take place. Mrs. Harold B. Cranshaw, chairman of the committee, will introduce the speaker at 8 o'clock.

Assisting on the committee are Mrs. Edmund E. Blake of Dedham, Mrs. Theodore G. Bremes of Chestnut Hill, Mrs. Robert Burnett of Southboro, Mrs. Walter B. Clifford of Boston, Mrs. Charles Danforth of Jamaica Plain, Mrs. Manning Emery, Jr., of Framingham, Mrs. Richard Fulleer of Boston, Mrs. Seth Haywood of Brookline and Miss Emily McFarlane of Cambridge. The lecture is free to all interested.

The French film "Le Trou dans la Mur" will be shown at two performances today and tomorrow, 2:30 and 8:15 o'clock at the new geography building on Divinity ave., in Cambridge. This has been arranged by the French talking film committee through the generosity of the large group of sponsors and patrons, which also have made it possible for students of Harvard and Radcliffe and students of Cambridge and Boston to attend it free of charge. Tickets are available at Room R, University Hall in the Harvard yard.

Library Patrons Pass Up Fiction

Circulation of books of fiction has fallen off more than 20 per cent, but circulation of all other books has increased from 20 to 60 per cent, according to Librarian Herbert W. Fison, of the Malden public library. People appear to be studying, the report shows.

BOOKS—and a Number of Things

By CHARLES HANSON TOWNE

I am getting, I am sorry to say, a little weary of anthologies. They fall in cascades from our presses, and they might be called short-cuts to a literary education. I have never gone through one of them without growing resentful of certain omissions. My favorite writers are either represented by a passage in prose or by a poem which is like one's favorite lady appearing at dinner in her most unbecoming dress. Or, oftener still, which worries me more, they are conspicuous by their absence.

"The Anthology of English Prose" is before me, edited by Herbert Read and Bonamy Dobree, and published by the Viking Press. Virginia Woolf and Oscar Wilde are included with two fragments that could not, to my mind, be poorer selections of their limpid prose; and Galsworthy and Masefield are not to be found at all.

Pater is given a half page and Yeats over twice that much space, with a poor specimen from his "Reveries Over Childhood and Youth." And Capt. Robert Falcon Scott rambles along in a drowsy passage from "The Voyage of Discovery" for almost two pages.

We find George Moore's dissertation on Degas from "Hail and Farewell," but not those last few pages from "The Lake," which is about the finest prose he ever wrote. But Lamb, I am glad to say, is not represented by his famous—I never could see why—essay on roast pig.

Poor Keats fares badly in the reproduction of his letter to Benjamin Bailey, which obviously was never written for publication; and Tennyson is not here at all. Pepys is given a whole page from one of the dullest extracts from his diary, which would certainly not make a student ambitious to go on reading him.

One might find fault with the selections from writers like Stevenson and George Borrow, but why go on? There is no accounting for tastes, but I thought of Sir Henry Newbolt's noble anthology of English prose and verse as I wended my way through this dreary desert.

There are, I believe, people who still play solitaire, but there is a much more profitable way of spending one's spare time nowadays. For half the world is playing contract and most of those who have written books on the subject have included in their instruction sets of hands which prove a fine method of self-teaching. One has but to place the cards on the table, as tabulated, to gain a new knowledge of the game.

R. F. Foster has prepared 100 such set-ups, with the solutions given at the back of his book, "Vanity Fair Bridge Problems" (Liveright). They used to print such chess problems in the newspapers when I was a lad, and there was no better and surer way of learning that intricate game.

There is something in most of us, Mr Foster holds, which makes us wish to try to solve puzzles. There are those which are simply pastimes, and those which help, even in small measure, toward the improvement of the mental faculties.

So do not gibe at your contract-playing friends, unless they are hopeless addicts who play from morning until night. The normal players are just little boys and girls trying to solve a fascinating riddle, to make them forget, for a time, as the bibulous man forgets on the links, the serious troubles that confound us all. Instead, place Mr. Foster's book in their hands.

It is incredible at this particular time that anyone should have the temerity to write anything advocating war.

Yet in a recent issue of an English periodical I ran across a distribe by a woman of title, Lady Drummond Hay, which startled me. There was all the ancient stuff and nonsense about war being an ennobling thing; how it put iron into men's souls; how it was necessary, and how it would probably always be necessary.

I read, as though I were in a dream; and that evening I spoke of it at a dinner-party, to get the reactions of the others around the table.

A witty friend spoke up, breaking the tension in the room.

"You say Lady Drummond Hay wrote that?" he inquired.

"Yes," I answered.

"Then I think the British government should change her name," he said. "Why don't they call her Lady Drum-and-fife?"

THIS IS LIFE

YOUNG BALDWIN IS RIGHT BUT WORLD IS NOT AS BAD AS HE SAYS

—By ROBERT E. ROGERS

YOUNG OLIVER BALDWIN, son of former Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin, who is now a member of Ramsay MacDonald's all-England cabinet, is as set in his principles as is his conservative father. He is lecturing in America—that characteristic side line or avocation of English writers and statesmen—and is at present holding forth in the middle west. At Kansas City the other evening he announced that so long as England remains capitalistic he will remain unmarried.

ROBERT E. ROGERS

"I wouldn't bring a child into a capitalistic world," he said. "And I like children, too. I have not married. I shall not marry. I may not marry soon, even if Socialism comes. Certainly I shall not marry under capitalism, when I think of the responsibility of bringing a child into the world to endure the suffering and inequality and injustice that goes with the present system."

The Martyrdom of Callow Youth

That sounds very much like the sort of thing that is said by a certain type of American college undergraduate or recent graduate. He is usually the son of a rich and successful man who is what is known as an old-fashioned, conservative capitalist. The boy is intelligent, sensitive. The gospel of socialism comes to him as a revelation in a sordid and unsatisfactory world. He proceeds to swing the whole length of the pendulum from his father's traditional early 19th century belief.

He goes in for strikes and labor troubles, joins the I. W. W. or the Communist party, gets himself involved in rows with the police involving free speech or public demonstrations, breaks with his family, becomes a martyr. Sometimes he remains in the movement; more often the virus wears off and he softens down into a middle-of-the-road liberal. An extreme example of this sort of young man was a young fellow named Garland, who a few years ago made over his inheritance of something like a million dollars to a society whose business it is to defend radicals when their crimes can be given a tinge of "capitalistic prosecution." Now the million dollars has been dissipated; the trust fund is wound up; the young man has no money as a foundation on which to build a useful and substantial life or to promote his own ideas.

At first sight young Oliver Baldwin seems like that sort of a youngster, whose belief is all theory and idealism. But when we learn that he is 33 years old and of some political experience, it becomes obvious that his is a more serious belief, based upon more experience than that of most of our young college revolutionaries.

Capitalism Seems All Shot

One can sympathize with him to a considerable extent. It is a very serious matter to bring children into an uncertain world. Unfortunately for society, it is usually the men and women of the better educated, more cultivated, more successful and secure stocks who do take this responsibility seriously and seek to limit it judiciously. Consequently, by sheer weight of numbers the control of the world is passing into the hands of those who are least able to support children and who, usually unsuccessful themselves, have little hope that their children will be more successful. There are always brilliant exceptions, of course—who furnish the chief argument for democracy—but in the main the proposition holds good.

If Mr. Baldwin believes, as well he may, that the capitalistic system is collapsing with a loud bang, that people of his class and their children will be on the outside looking in very shortly, one can understand why he is so eager to climb on the socialist bandwagon and occupy as prominent a seat thereon as he can obtain. But with the implications of his logic I can not agree.

It is true that at present the capitalist system is feeling low. It is all run down. It has neglected bodily hygiene and needs a thorough overhauling. In addition, it is in the position of a sick man who has been run over by several motor trucks in quick succession. Naturally, is is not at its best.

But it is noticeable that the countries which have surrendered most completely to the theory of democracy-socialism (for they are essentially one and the same) are feeling worst: England, Germany and the United States. The two countries that have deliberately upheld the older system by strict government and by force seem at present the most healthy: France and Italy. And whatever Russia may have dreamed of in the past, at present it is getting along as well as it does simply because it has modified its theoretical communism bit by bit until it is, at present, in the words of H. G. Wells, a state capitalism. It is obviously on the road to the modified capitalism, which will make provision for private enterprise and private property. That seems clear on the face of it.

Socialism Means Less Security

It is true that the World War caused an unforeseen dislocation to the system which it will take a long time to get over. But if Mr. Baldwin will think back, he cannot help but remember that under 19th century capitalism the position of the average working man and his family was made more secure than ever before in history. There was more general economic competency than ever before. There was inequality, of course—and that is really what the idealists want to abolish—but there was a reasonable amount of good living and security for even the common laborer.

Under any system that is brought into being, there will be inequality and there will be only modified security. Socialism will work out no more perfectly than did Slavery, Feudalism, or Capitalism. There will be—somehow—a privileged class and a non-privileged. Only, they will not be the same classes as at present. All that Mr. Baldwin means is: "Instead of having children under a system whereby at present they are reasonably sure of a preferred position in life I shall wait until the Socialist regime, when they will be reasonably sure of not having a preferred position in life."

That I call selfish. He has no reason to believe that the new system will be more ideal than the other. But he prefers to sacrifice his dependents, those who are his mercy, to a theory. Fortunately, even in today's conditions in the United States, in spite of our socialistic politicians, most of us go on the assumption that it is the individual's duty to provide for his family and dependents to the best extent possible. Except for a small number of theoretical idealists, we do not believe that it is our duty to sacrifice a tangible and possible good for an intangible and improbable better. However little we may approve Mr. Baldwin's reasons, we think he is right. He is not the kind of man who ought to have a family. He had better live for humanity—and get what comfort he can out of it!

'MARINA' COSTUMES WILL STAY

ARE THESE COSTUMES TOO SCANTY?

GERTRUDE MARSHALL DOROTHY WYNN

The cameraman arrived in time for a dress rehearsal of the "Dance of the Sea Breeze," one of the numbers in "Marina," in which the costumes are under discussion. Dorothy Wynn, Lois Gulesian, Rosemary Lamont, Harriet Dyer, Gertrude Marshall are sea breeze dancers. Rosamund Pierce does a number of solo dances.

ANNA C. RYAN LILLIAN E. MUNSON

DODGE DEFENDS BRIEF ATTIRE OF DANCERS

Explains "Sea Breeze" Garb May Have Slipped, but Sees Nothing Objectionable

Costumes worn by the young women in Mrs. Larz Anderson's "Marina" will not be lengthened one inch or in any way altered in spite of protests telephoned to Mayor Curley, it was announced today by Mrs. Anderson.

At the opening performance of the show Monday night, Mayor Curley commended the production because they employed so many Bostonians and jokingly added that if City Censor John M. Casey saw the performance he might find work for seamstresses—making the costumes a bit more adequate.

COSTUMES MAY SLIP

Mr. Casey was not ordered to attend a performance, and members of the cast especially the society girls heaved a sigh of relief.

Wendell Phillips Dodge, business manager, assisting Mrs. Anderson, said that when Mayor Curley referred to "scanty costumes" he probably meant the garb worn by girls doing the "Dance of the Sea Breeze." These are two-piece costume consisting of a silver bandeau and a very short skirt of sywthetic seaweed. Although the legs and the flesh between the skirt and the bandeau are exposed — there is nothing objectionable in the display.

Mr. Dodge did admit, however, that in the heat and enthusiasm of the dance, the costumes slipped a wee bit—exposing for a brief second an inch or so more of the dancers than was intended by the costume designer. Too many strangers, he said, would spoil the idea of the production, which is to depict the beauties of nature and the sea as truthfully as possible.

DRESS REHEARSAL

At a dress rehearsal yesterday, the cameraman photographed many of the interesting members of the cast. Among them are Anna C. Curtier, who takes the role of a mermaid; Rosamond Pierce, who does a number of solo dances, and Martha Bigelow Eliot, the "Eastern Princess." All three of these young ladies are prominent in Boston society. Miss Curtier and Mrs. Eliot are members of the Junior League and the Vincent Club.

Other dancers and singers whose costumes were unusually attractive are Miss Mindon Sewell, "Sea Witch," and the "Sea Devil," Curtis Hunnewell, Sunny Greene, Amos G. Ryan and Lillian E. Munson, "Slaves to the Prince"; and Dorothy Wynn, Gertrude Marshall, Lois Gulesian, Rosemary Lamont and Harriet Dyer, sea breeze dancers.

JOB SEEKER BREAKS ANKLE

Charles Harriman, 47, of Perkins st., Somerville, has refused to accept medical attention for a broken ankle, because he fears that a period of inactivity will mar his opportunities of securing a job.

Harriman walked from his home in Somerville to the Haymarket Relief Hospital last night, more than 24 hours after his ankle was broken.

Harriman told attendants at the hospital that while seeking employment Monday afternoon he crossed a freight yard, in crossing he tripped and fell. Shortly after the fall he suffered acute pain in his right ankle but he continued walking.

He told doctors that he tramped through Boston streets all day yesterday, vainly seeking work. Last night the pain became unbearable and he hiked from Somerville to the Relief Hospital.

X-ray plates taken here showed that his ankle was broken.

Doctors desired to remove him to City Hospital where the injury could be treated, but Harriman demurred.

CAR ON TRACKS DELAYS TRAINS

Several hundred passengers on a Boston-bound south shore local train on the New Haven railroad were delayed last night when a sedan dropped onto the tracks near Columbia Circle, Dorchester.

The engineer was able to stop the freight in time, and the train hauled the passengers into Columbia Circle, Dorchester.

WHAT'S LIKE WHAT? ASK BAER, OR ASK COOK

By GILBERT SELDES

THE TWO MEN WHO MAKE the most and the best comparisons in America seem to be "Bugs" Baer and Ted Cook. Annually Mr. Frank Wilstach issues (free) some twenty pages of the best similies of the year, material which will, no doubt, enrich a revision of his "Dictionary of Smiles," and annually "Bugs" Baer and Ted Cook are pretty snug at the top of the heap. (I ought to say, they are "As comfortable at the top as a flagpole sitter on his first day," but I find that I have no gift for similes; to verify this I have given myself the trouble of reading through several old columns of my own stuff and found not a single simile in the lot.) If you want to know how good Baer and Cook are, compare them with some of the others. For example, John Riddell's "His voice was as soft as the sliding of countless buttons through countless buttonholes in the long woolen underwear of time." It is hard to see or to hear; the only good bit is the end, which is an amusing metaphor. Even P. G. Wodehouse can only manage, "A low, soft voice, like thick cream made audible." But Baer tosses off, "Guilty as a bottle under a table," and Cook, "As old-fashioned as a search warrant." They are brief, natural and complete.

Baer's Good Eye

"Bugs" Baer has the roving eye which sees the likeness between the most unrelated objects; almost all the comparisons he makes give you something to see in your mind's eye; they are not only pictures, but actions. He says, "They flocked to him like sopranos to a microphone," or "Pepper Martin lay there like a lily in a gangster's hand." Cook packs more thought into his similes, but gives you nothing so pictorial to rest your mind on. He says, "Happy as a woman's club being warned about the Red menace," and you think of a lot of things, but not so much of the degree of happiness he is trying to express. "Bugs" Baer says, "Happy as a bee in a florist's shop." And there you are. Each is a master in his line (and each does a great deal more than make similes all day long, as their devoted followers know).

Flowers for Popeye

It occurs to me that Popeye ought to be "Bugs" Baer's favorite comic; Popeye cuts corners the same way Baer does. Baer reads the report that Coolidge will not be a candidate and writes, "Hoover's sure of one vote." When Popeye was General, King (pro tem) and Supreme Court Judge a few weeks ago he displayed the same rough justice. He is a simple soul with a strong fight arm, and he is always ready to fight, if only to prove that he has strength of character enough to swear off fighting. He must have knocked out ten thousand fairly powerful lads in the past six months, but he is rather an endearing person. He is still surprised at the meanness of other people—blow me down! (I've seen those words with imitations of the Popeye figure on trucks and on walls all over town. And I understand why Olive Oyl is so keen on his company.) The Thimble Theater has always been a comic of the first class; since Popeye made his appearance it has been full of variety and good humor and excitement.

Fashions in Strips

Fashons in comic strips change, but individual strips have to change slowly. One strip, Krazy Kat, is like no other in the world; it stands alone, as different from the others as cabbages are from kings. (It is no secret that Krazy Kat is my favorite work of art.) The broad line of division between the others is that some are continued stories and some are complete little episodes, and the tendency lately is toward more stories, shading into almost tragic events. The mysterious stranger and the sudden legacy are favorite devices; and sometimes characters get themselves so involved that reading a novel would be easier.

Sock 'Em Style

I was brought up in the Pow-Bam-Zowie school, when a sock in the jaw or a good wisecrack sent one character flying into the middle of next week, so that complications do not attract me. But in all the types there is one thing of perpetual fascination; the characters are timeless. They never grow any balder than they are, or any bigger; they never learn by experience; they are always themselves. That is why they are so much preferable to most of the people one meets outside the comic strip.

Bad Plays and Good

What bad plays do to the theater was pretty clearly shown by the production last week of an extraordinary play, "Never No More." We are so accustomed to plays that have no reality, and very little interest, that a play with the actual sense of life almost terrifies us. In this particular case the entire second act of the play showed us a Negro family barricaded in a hut, while outside of it the youngest son was being lynched. The idea of a lynching is unbearable enough and the play kept on to the last second of misery. It was dreadfully moving, but it was not sickening. It was, as nearly every critic said, harrowing. Yet there was restraint in it, and there was a fine perception of the art of theater which exactly balanced the human emotions of terror and mad rage with which the stage was filled

Honors to Producers

A lynching on the stage, like an electrocution, begins with an enormous and unfair advantage; it stirs the emotions by mere fact and can get along with fairly bad writing. In this case the writing was amazingly good and the acting was quiet. If we had been accustomed to a theater which dealt with simpler and more pleasant things as honesty, if our theater was at all in the habit of giving us the truth about any situation, we should not have been so surprised. As it is, the young producer, Mr. Robert Sparks, his backers and his players, are entitled to all the glory for venturing on a play which, as Mr. James K. Mullin, the author, said, will bring them either the Pulitzer prize or get them lynched.

RADIO HUNT FOR VOICES

Boston Air Star Also Adopts Plan

By N. F. T.

Very much in the same manner as intrepid men have penetrated fastnesses of darkest Africa, the preponderous Paul Whiteman announces an expedition among American amateurs in a determined endeavor to discover unknown broadcasting personality.

His search is nation-wide and so far has been conducted on a systematic and effective basis. Recent auditions in St. Louis followed announcements by the mayor, the mayor being featured with the famed musicker during his coast-to-coast hookup one week later through a NBC network.

TO YOUR BIG CITIES

Whiteman plans to conduct his voice test in many major cities Preliminaries and finals are made a part of each competition. Contestants must not have had any previous broadcasting experience whatever. That's one rigid rule.

Strangely enough and simultaneously Joe Rines, one of Boston's own and better-known baton wielders, launches his search along the same line. Joe will work out the details in connection with and during a personal appearance he makes here beginning Friday for Paramount-Publix, at the Metropolitan Theater. As guest conductor for the big Tremont attentainment emporium orchestra, the leader man holds daily auditions. These must be arranged by appointment with those who send him their names and state the particular type of studio performance for which they desire to be tried out.

Radio people hereabouts should doff chapeaux today after what happened yesterday and last night. First, Steve Fitzgibbons, studio scribe, who responded to a Monitrol phone call with resourceful action. He airshipped a singer to Jack Denny for the latter's big cigarette hour, featuring Walter Winchell and heard through WEEI field vocalist made New York listeners and broadcasting bigwigs phone the Canadian city for his name. Mrs. Weeks, of Brookline and infant son, Randell Stanwood Weeks, may well be proud of his band and papa "Fanny." Walter Winchell will tell everybody what NBC folks think of the Boston baritone tomorrow night.

COMFORT for COLICKY BABIES

with Castoria's gentle regulation

"The best way to cure colic," says a famous doctor, "is to prevent it." And the best way to prevent colic is to avoid gas in stomach and bowels by keeping the entire intestinal tract open, free from waste.

And there's one thing to remember here. A tiny baby's tender organs cannot stand harsh treatment. They must be gently urged.

This is just the place Castoria comes in a mother's aid (Castoria, you know, is made specially for the delicate needs of babies and children. It is a pure vegetable preparation which is absolutely harmless. It contains no harsh drugs, no narcotics Children never fight Castoria. They like its taste and the relaxed comfort its gentle regulation brings.

For many years it has helped mothers through trying ordeals with colicky babies, with children suffering from digestive upsets, colds and other little ailments. Keep it on hand for your children. You can always tell genuine Castoria by the name Chas. H. Fletcher.

40,000 FACE VACCINATION

Pittsburg, Jan. 13 (AP)—Pittsburg's physicians met in conference today as the city's 40 000 inhabitants prepared for vaccination against smallpox.

Board of health authorities ordered the vaccination of every resident after 30 cases of the disease had been reported. State and city health officials were unable to determine the sources of the contagion.

RELIEF DRIVE QUARTERS OPEN

J. Paul Foster, bureau manager of the Boston Chamber of Commerce, will serve as executive secretary of the trades division in the $3,000,000 drive of the United Boston Unemployment Relief committee.

The first ward headquarters in the drive was opened yesterday by Ward 21 leaders in the Prendergville Block, Harvard and Brighton aves., Allston. A second headquarters for the same ward will be opened at 1962 Beacon st. to provide for the Reservoir section.

Immediate organization of volunteer workers for this ward will be undertaken by the ward chairman, Joseph Maynard.

A mass meeting of workers, with all who wish to volunteer invited to attend, will be held at the newly opened headquarters on Friday

Radio reception is best when the moon's below the horizon. And it falls off when the moon rises.

Still, radio keeps pleading for the moon to keep shining.

A strong sun also tends to ruin radio reception.

So radio men won't be happy until the moon and the sun shine on planets unknown. The seasons, If the an'ncer on the WEEI cooking school b'dcast sounds as though he has a hot potato in his mouth, he probably has.

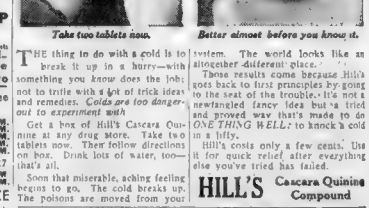
Here's Quick Way To Break Up a Cold

Makes you feel like a new person almost before you know it



Take two tablets now. Better almost before you know it.

THE thing to do with a cold is to break it up in a hurry—with something you know does the job; not to trifle with a lot of trick ideas and remedies. Colds are too dangerous to experiment with

Get a box of Hill's Cascara Quinine at any drug store. Take two tablets now. Then follow directions on box. Drink lots of water, too—that's all.

Soon that miserable, aching feeling begins to go. The cold breaks up. The poisons are moved from your system. The world looks like an altogether different place.

Those results come because Hill's got back to old principles by going to the seat of the trouble. It's not a newfangled fancy idea but a tried and proved way that's made it ONE THING WELL: to knock a cold in a jiffy.

Hill's costs only a few cents. Use it for quick relief after everything else you've tried has failed.

THE GIGOLO RACKET HAS BECOME POPULAR

—By HELEN ROWLAND—

THE GIGOLO business is a new "racket," which has become almost as popular as the beauty parlor business or the speakeasy business.

In Paris, a gigolo is a professional dancing man, who, for a money consideration, will lightfoot it with stout dowagers and lone debutantes, at tea-dances. But, in America, the gigolo has blossomed into fifty-seven varieties—every one "just a little boyay trying to get along."

You probably have heard of only one type; the graceful, pretty-faced youth with the polished manners, who goes in for devotion in a Big Way to some wealthy dowager, still bent on clinging to her dancing-days.

But don't imagine that lonely widows and over-ripe ladies are the only supporters of the gigolo racket. It thrives on tired business women, bored wives, rich spinsters and ambitious debutantes. In short, on feminine VANITY!

It requires ability and energy to make good in business or a profession. But all it takes to be a brilliant success as a gigolo is a suit of evening clothes, a dancing foot and a good line of soft soap.

The modern debutante MUST have her flock of followers. She wants a stag-line long enough to drape the dressing-room wall—and a "spare" for every idle moment. And she doesn't care much whether they are just out of college, just out of a job or just out of jail, so long as they fit into the picture and LOOK the part.

Of course, lots of these male gold-diggers, party-boys and gate-crashers never even THINK of themselves as "gigolos." They probably regard themselves as "society men," or Great Lovers, or gay dogs

But a "gigolo" is any man who accepts the bounty of women—and there is no camouflaging that fact.

The man who marries for money, the languid youth who lets his smart business-girl wife hustle for the bacon while he gets his beauty sleep, and the playboy who pursues rich widows are all of a piece. Just gigolos!

In this land famed for its Indian fighters, cow-punchers, rough-riders, dare-devil aviators and bond-boiled bosses, even, the gigolo is as incongruous as a pink rose on a trench helmet.

And every mother's battle-hymn should be, "I did not raise my boy to be a gigolo!"

EMBERS OF LOVE ❖ By Hazel Livingston

Lily Lou in Big Opera Success

IT WAS four months since Lily Lou had come to New York and now she was to meet the operatic star, Nita Nahlman, and sing for her in Gwin's studio

So taken was the prima donna with her voice that she took her in Evelyn, in spite of Lily Lou's shy confession that she was to have a child. She explained the marriage to Ken and the annulment by his father. Nita laughed and took it as a huge joke, promising to care for the mother and child during the interning event.

This she did subsequently in Vienna. In Paris she placed Lily Lou, when the latter had recovered, as an understudy in the operatic company. The baby proved to be a boy and she named him Robin Lansing

Then came her big chance. Her principal met with an accident and she sang the part to a tremendous success.

WARNED OF MEN

Madame Nahlman put her warm arms around her

"Dear Lily, my good friend Do not let your head be turned. No man . . understand me . . no man is worth it . . ."

Lily Lou wanted to laugh, but she felt abashed. As if any man Blumenthal, or any other, mattered to her, except as he could further her career

"And now, my child, go home You are tired. Your first night. You must rest. I will make your excuses. That is wise"

Creaking home in the taxi she began to sing softly . . not the part she had just sung . . . Carmen's aria . . She'd sing that, too, some day . . though it was a bit low for her

The baby . Lily Lou went cold all over. What kind of woman was she? To forget him. To come home, her head full of herself and her silly little triumph, and make herself chocolate . . .

In her room, the room with the big bed, and the little one in it, the Bonns sat dozing in her chair, crocheted tea cap a little askew. The room was warm and airless, the night light burned very low.

HEART OVERFLOWS

Lily Lou stood very still, holding the light.

A torrent of tears flooded her heart. She ought to fling herself on her knees . . . to thank God . . but she could not move, could not stop looking at him. Such a tiny thing, to be so like . . . Ken . . .

The very bones of his baby chin

She was back in a little country town in Northern California The first pale morning light was coming through the open windows of the crude hotel room And he was sleeping, the light on his fair head.

She sank to her knees, tried to stifle the sobs that were having their way with her, in it down of the baby's coverlet

Madame Nahlman's husband turned up. Nahlman had talked about him, dwelling upon his beauty, his wit, his passion for the ladies, with her usual frankness. But she had also talked about his three predecessors with the same gusto and frankness Lily Lou had relegated them all to a shadowy past. And here he was in the flesh

Two days later Madame Nahlman said

"The bubchen annoys Rodney. The English are so averse to anything natural, that a baby in the house—"

"Oh!" Lily Lou said, "Oh!"

"So, since I have that big class coming up, and won't have any real time to coach you any way, it seems to me that you might as well go back to New York. There isn't a thing for you at the opera here this summer. Nothing but Americans here in summer anyway So you go on back to New York, and later, when you are a little better prepared, I plan something worth while. You know you can trust me for that Lily?"

"Oh—of course!"

But she felt that Nahlman had struck her.

"Go back to Gwin for a while "Yes, Lily Lou promised

And her own mind went racing ahead, back across the sea to New York, to face the people she had known, with the Bubchen in her arms. She'd probably have to board him somewhere, she'd never be able to earn enough to hire a nurse. It had been so easy here . . her comfortable rooms, the devoted bonna, everyone's natural acceptance of her as Madame Lansing. .

She thought of Gwin. Who would he think of her now? Of her small triumph in Carmen, and two critics writing that her voice gave promise of being the musical find of the year . . And now the year was over

"I have left all the arranging to Rodney" she said. He . . much else . . . . . than I

FANNING

By GEORGE UNDERWOOD

Opening Stable Door. To Name Boxing Boss? Man Killer May Come.

Squeezing the Juice From Sport's Orange

Bright and early tomorrow the racing bill legalizing the sport of Kings in the old Bay State will be introduced in the Massachusetts Legislature . . . With John R. Macomber Bayard Tuckerman, Herbert L. Tinkham, Charles F. Adams and the flower of New England sportsmen behind it the bill is likely to become a law and the bangtails giddyap in all their glory . . . And the little birdies say this is the day the Governor will appoint the new Boxing Commissioner . . . They said it before . . . Maybe they're right, this time . . . Having exhibited Herr Maxie Schmeling with much eclat and success Eddie Barnum & Bailey Mack now says he will show Jack Dempsey at the Arena on Jan. 28 . . . But Dick Ringling Bros. Dunn says Dempsey will appear at the Boston Garden . . . Both can't be right . . . The old Man Killer packed perhaps still packs, more punch, color, magnetism, drawing power in his little finger than the other heavies do in their whole anatomies . . . The only doubt about Dempsey is his legs . . . Some of the boys say they are spavined . . . Reaching down in the corner of our pocket for the thin dime we were saving for trolley fare we'll wager those rattly old underpinnings will hold up the old Man Killer lots better than the skeptics think . . . The American Legion is rallying behind Sharkey . . . Reef all sails, Maxie . . . Storms ahead!

When kidded about the lack of punch in his written story on Max Schmeling, which failed to jibe with his spoken words on the champion Jack Sharkey wisely opined: "Written words bounce back" . . . Proving he has some good advisor hidden in the wood pile . . . The "mob," represented by gangsters and gorillas is in control of more than sixty per cent of the country's leading fighters . . . Now an economy wave threatens the abolishment of the N. Y. State Athletic Commission, about,the only official board which has shown any disposition or inclination to hold "the mob" in check . . . The mob has made the great Madison Square Garden Corporation jump through and roll over . . . It seems false economy to abolish a board whose direction of the sport is greatly responsible for a tremendous financial turnover to the State . . . Max Schmeling and Joe Jacobs were silent partners of Pa Stribling in promotion of last winter's Walker-Risko bout in Miami . . . Later Stribling and Schmeling met in Cleveland . . . Yet once upon a time Stribling's K. K. K. mates threatened to hang Joe Jacobs to a sour apple tree down in Georgia . . . That was when Yussell The Muscle was piloting Bowld Michael McTigue . . . Politics and fistics make strange bed fellows.

Hack Wilson broke in with the Giants for a $3500 salary, which was raised to $5000 . . . When he came back from Toledo to the big leagues the Cubs boosted his wages and in 1930 Hack was drawing $21,000 . . . He made so many home runs that year that Wrigley gave him a 1931 contract calling for $33,000 . . . Accompanying Hack's salary slash to $7500 by the Cardinals the week before Xmas was a Yuletide greeting wishing him a merry Xmas . . . Plenty of trouble in baseball before the league season gets under way . . . As far as can be ascertained, however, there is no truth in the report that to protect themselves the players are receiving the old Players Fraternity . . . Charlie Stoneham's forty per cent slash of Bill Terry's salary has added plenty of fuel to the flames of discontent . . . Remember baseball did NOT lose money, last year.

Want to see a great football picture? . . . Go to the Fenway or the Modern next Saturday and see the Notre Dame vs. Southern California duel, the game in which Notre Dame's great victory string was snapped . . . We saw a preview this morning . . . The hardest, roughest, cleanest game we ever saw and the best filmed . . . The cameramen bring you right down on the field of play . . .

You see every movement of line and backfield . . . Remember the much disputed alleged interference with the pass that changed the whole aspect of game? . . . See it yourself and judge whether officials were right . . . Eddie Casey, Art McManmon, Joe McKeney and the big gallery of football experts, who saw the preview, went wild over it . . . So will you . . . Part of the proceeds of the picture will go to the Rockne Foundation.

Just to keep our pals in the composing room from getting the onnui we offer for your edification the names of the Finns who will compete in the Winter Olympics at Lake Placid—Livari Tokola, Veli Saarinen, Martti Lappalainen, Tauno Lappalainen, Vaino Liikkanen, Armas Palroos and Ossi Blomvquist . . . Sounds like the Fighting Irish of Notre Dame and Fordham . . . Many football coaches disagree with Pop Warner that the substitution of soft helmets will cut down football injuries . . . They say hard helmets never vitally injure an opponent but do save the wearer from vital injury . . . What is the reason for so many overtime and tie games in hockey, this season?

Including last Sunday's games Hooley Smith of Montreal with 23 points is the N. H. L. high scorer . . . Behind him are seven players within five points reach . . . Hooley is only a point ahead of Bill Cook and two points ahead of Dit Clapper, Jackson and Primeau . . . Of Smith's 23 points 16 are for assists . . . Cook rang up 22 points with 17 goals and 5 assists . . . Back of Clapper here is how the Bruins stack—Barry 13 pts., Weiland and Owen 11, Oliver 9, Shore, Tuohey and Chapman 8, Alex Cook 7, Hitchman 3 Foster 2 and Burke 1.

RANGERS WIN OVER BRUINS AT GARDEN

After trailing, 3 to 1, entering the third period, the New York Rangers came back and defeated the Bruins at the Garden, 5 to 3, in overtime.

The game was fast through the regular periods and the overtime. The defeat was the first for the Pruins in some time, breaking a streak of 11 game, without a defeat for the Boston club.

Cecil Dillon and Murray Murdock teamed up for the Rangers' winning goal last night. It was a well executed play and capped a great comeback for the Rangers.

In order to go Lester Patrick one better, Manager Art Ross removed Tiny Thompson into in the overtime period. With Dit Clapper guarding the outer and inner defense, Cecil Dillon walked in and scored the fifth and final goal of the game.

Apparently the Bruins have developed a two-foal lead complex this season. They have blown many games this year after opening up a two-goal gap.

The Bruins leave tonight for New York and they will not return until Sunday, for they are listed to play from Gotham to Montreal, where they meet Les Canadiens on Saturday.

As soon as Lester Patrick learned that Jimmy Creighton had been released by the Cubs, he ordered the former Port Arthur star to report to the Springfield Indians. Creighton left for Springfield today and he will feature with Frank Carroll's outfit.

Whether the visiting club or the Bruins shot the puck down the ice, the fans protested with plenty of boos.

Although Tiny Thompson had a comparatively easy time during the first period, Roach was a busy young man. Barry, Clapper, Weiland and Cook were all inside for shots at John Ross but they failed to beat him.

After Mary Barry had squirmed through the Rangers' defense and missed the net Earl Seibert recovered, dashed down the right wing, dodged through Hitchman and Owen and beat Thompson with a high shot.

After looking over the crowds that turn out weekly for the Bruins games, it is difficult to believe that there is anything like a depression in this section of the country.

Head Coach Eddie Casey of Harvard enjoyed the game from the press box as a guest of Frank Wilson. If Nadick Eddie can ever produce an offense at Harvard such as the Bruins and Rangers display he will never again be bothered by stomach trouble.

O'Brien in Mat Draw With Fred Tiretta

Jack O'Brien and Fred Tiretta battled to a 15-minute draw in the 175-pound class in the Tufts College elimination series. Although O'Brien had a 5-minute 10-second advantage, Coach Ruggeri ruled the match a draw. The pair will fight it out this afternoon.

In another bout, Al Johnson, a member of the varsity squad for the past two seasons gained a referee's decision over Lazaro Philips in the first round of the 145-pound class.

Peden and Parott Win Milwaukee Race

Milwaukee, Wis., Jan. 12 (AP)—The team of Torchy Peden, Toronto, and Polly Parott, Ireland, tonight won the Milwaukee six-day bicycle race with 2367 miles. They won by two laps.

Peter Smessaert of Chicago and Oscar Wambsganss of Belgium were second, and third places went to Maurice de Clerck of Belgium and Jules Audy of France.

"Trump, trump, trump, the boys are playing."

Mrs. Culberison says that bridge is now a major sport, and will take its place along with football, baseball and hockey. She might have added prize fighting.

Reports from the recent "world championship" bridge tournament indicated that the match might have been more interesting had all the players worn boxing gloves.

'Or block that slam."

Fearing this may happen, our son will be apprenticed to an honest plumber at an early age. Or else go out for the college poker team.

There are worse ways of wasting a college career than playing bridge. But just now, we can't think what these are.

Charlie Mooney, veteran athletic and sports follower, whispers in our clean ear, that "Terryble" is the only word to describe the proposed cuts in the salaries of baseball players.

How about saying that the salaries will be "Hacked," like Wilson's"

"Here, here!" cries another jobbitzer. "Lay offen them boys. They're taking pun-ishment enough."

And still a third assistant columnist insists that "there is no sense, yet plenty of cents, in cutting players' salaries."

Schaaf has been training for his bout with Jack Dorval, which was called off when the latter tore a muscle in the lumbar region below the 12th rib on the right side.

It looks as if the Schaaf-Dorval bout is off for the present at least. The Garden was anxious to put the bout in on January 29, but the signing of Schaaf and Paulino will probably upset these plans.

Mr. Boston

When Jack Dempsey appears in Boston, it will be in a four-round bout and not in exhibition contests. Dempsey has told Eddie Mack he wants to toss punches against fair opposition. Mack will try to sign Dempsey with one of the local heavyweights, Sharkey, Schaaf and Dorval, of course, are barred.

Tom Kanaly of the B. A. A. tells me the State amateur boxing championships will be staged at the Arena on January 25. Bouts will be held at 112, 118, 126, 135, 147, 160 and 175 pounds and in the heavyweight division. The tournament will be staged under the direction of the New England A. A. U.

Speaking of the noble amateurs, Father Bill Cuddy says the St. Joe's T. A. Society will be back in the field with another show at Mechanics Building on next Monday night. There will be tussles at 112, 118, 126, 135, 147, 160 and 175 pounds and in the heavyweight division.

The St. Joes Golden Glove tournament has been the high spot of the amateur boxing season.

"Fine," replied Ely.

The occasion of Sharkey's visit to the governor's office was his agreement with State Commander Stephen C. Garrity that he would battle Max Schmeling under the auspices of the American Legion next summer. The national organization has been asked to assist in forcing Schmeling to give Sharkey a return bout.

If the Legion can land this match, it will turn over the profits of the show to a fund to care for the disabled and unemployed in the ranks of the Legion. It would appear that the next move is up to Schmeling.

The Argonne Club drew a net gate of $8,500 at the Schmeling exhibition. Max received $3500 as his end which was at the rate of more than $1200 a round. Not so bad when it is considered the champion had his own sparring partners as opponents.

Smartness of Clancy Cost Bruins Victory

Eddie Powers has managed and coached hockey teams in Canada, including the St. Pat's of Toronto. Eddie made his debut here with the Westminsters in 1920 but, after two seasons, returned to Canada and took over the St Pat's of the N. H. L. He was selected to manage the Boston Tigers when the Can-Am League started and has met with wonderful success. He is recognized as the greatest increase coach in Canada and may show his ability in that sport here, during the coming summer.

By EDDIE POWERS

As Told to Bill Grimes

After winning the U. S. amateur championship in 1921, the Westminsters engaged in a series with Pere Marquette, which developed some wild hockey but to me the greatest hockey game I ever saw was the Bruins-Toronto 3 to 3 game last March at the Boston Garden.

King Clancy robbed the Bruins of a victory by the quickest thinking I have ever witnessed, claiming he was offside when Cooney Weiland scored from a faceoff during overtime.

17 Penalties Called During Wild Fray

There were 17 penalties called during the game, 12 of which were against Toronto. Due to the fact that the officials were experiencing an anti defense night, they missed much of the rough stuff.

Within 27 seconds of the bell ending the second stanza, Charlie Conacher and Andy Blair scored giving the Maple Leafs a two goal advantage starting the final period. Then Cooney Weiland came through with a couple of tallies and again the game was tied up.

Instead of following the usual referee's decision, when clubs are tied entering overtime period, defensive hockey, the Bruins and the Maple Leafs opened and sailed right after each other.

About half way through the overtime period, a penalty was called on Lorne Chabot, and Mickie Ion ordered a faceoff in front of the Toronto goal.

Cooney Weiland and Andy Blair lined up for the faceoff. Weiland beat Blair to the drop and caged the puck but the goal was not allowed for King Clancy raced up to Bill Shaver and declared that he was off side when the play started.

Shaver was outmarked by the King and recalled the goal, thereby penalizing the offended team, which is a record in any game.

Although the teams battled for the remainder of the period, there was no scoring and the contest was declared a draw. As the tie gave the Bruins the American Division championship, Manager Art Ross did not protest against Shaver's decision.

SHIRES SIGNS WITH TRIBE

Dallas, Texas, Jan. 12—Art Shires, first baseman bought by the Boston Braves last fall, has announced that he has signed an $11,000 contract to play for the Tribe this year.

Art's new salary is several thousand more than he received last year while leading the American Association hitting as a member of the Milwaukee nine.

Big League Season to Open April 11

New York, Jan. 13—The regular major league baseball season will open April 11, and conclude September 25. The Boston Red Sox will play April 11 against the Senators at Washington, when President Hoover will go through the ceremonial ceremony of throwing the first ball.

TROJAN 'SUB' TO SUE UNIVERSITY

Los Angeles, Jan. 13 (AP)- Dr. Shirley Hawkins said today he would go to obtain an apology from officials of the University of Southern California for accusing him of disloyalty, William Hawkins, substitute center of the Trojan football squad, has quit the university to carry to court his demand for vindication.

Richard H. Cantillon, an attorney said he would file suit against the university charging either libel, imprisonment, or slander. The suit for possible damages will be sought Cantillon said, vindication alone being the purpose of the suit.

Hawkins submitted to confinement in a mountain cabin for three days prior to the U. S. C.-Notre Dame game, guarded by detectives when it was believed by coaches of the football team he might be giving Trojan plays to the Notre Dame team.

Amateur hockey fans will see Uncle Sam's Olympic hockey team at the Arena tonight when the West's University of Minnesota team meets the East team, Boston-New York Olympic contenders, in the final game prior to the selection of the team to go to Lake Placid.

Parker is the high scoring individual of this aggregation. Although Parker is only a sophamore, he has already been mentioned as a likely prospect for professional ranks.

Despite the reputed strength of the Minnesota team, it is difficult to predict anything but a victory for the Eastern champions. If the New York-Boston outfit displays the same brand of hockey it did last week against Yale, it should dispose of the Westerners.

HARVARD SIX IN GARDEN GO

For the first time in the 32 years of hockey in this country, the collegiate championship of the United States may be determined when the University of Minnesota plays Harvard varsity at the Boston Garden, tomorrow night.

Harvard has not yet won the eastern collegiate title. The Crimson has met important games in the offing with Dartmouth and Yale. But Harvard today stands an excellent chance to win the title of the United States.

If Harvard can brush off Minnesota and then follow with wins over Dartmouth and Yale it will be the first time a team has had a clear claim to the collegiate championship of the United States.

Economy Wave Hits U. S. Olympic Team

New York, Jan. 13 (US)—A wave of economy struck the U. S. Olympic team today. Three hundred and fifty thousand dollars is needed to finance the American forces. The finances committee revealed the Winter Olympic team had been cut 17 per cent.

Of the $350,000 to be raised by public subscription, $30,000 is needed immediately for expenses of the winter team at the Olympic events in Lake Placid, N. Y., starting February 4.

Gomez and Gehrig Sign on Dotted Line

New York, Jan. 13 (AP)—The New York Yankees have sent out contracts for the 1932 season and already two stars, Lou Gehrig and Vernon Gomez, are understood to have accepted terms.

Gehrig, it is understood, will receive the same salary as last year, while Gomez, ace of the pitching staff, is believed to have been given a substantial raise.

Women's Squash Racquets Play On

Miss Eleonora R. Sears was one of the seeded players in advance in the women's squash racquets championship of Massachusetts at the Harvard Club of Boston. Play continues in the tourney today.

The leading match today will bring together the defending champion, Mrs. George W. Wightman, and the winner of the Mrs. May-Mrs Wolfe match.

Nusslein Sure He Will Beat Tilden

Hans Nusslein believes that he will defeat Bill Tilden when they clash at the Boston Garden one week from tomorrow night in a five-set match. He is also paired with Roman Najuch, Czecho-Slovakian veteran, against Bob Kelleg of California and Tilden in doubles at the Garden.

FALSE ECONOMY IN SALARY CUT FOR TERRY

GIANTS MAY LOSE MONEY BY SAVING

By JOE CASHMAN

Economy is one thing; false economy something else again.

The big league baseball magnates have decided to retrench, but, from present indications, what some of them are going is adopting a penny-wise, pound-foolish policy as regards expenses.

The salaries of many ball players can be cut and money saved, but to slash the wages of certain performers to any extent is financial suicide.

Two salary arguments have already started, one between Hack Wilson and the Cards, and the other between Bill Terry and the Giants.

One represents true economy; the other false economy.

The Cards want to reduce Wilson's salary from $33,000 to $7500. That reduction is quite drastic, but there is no doubt that Wilson deserves a big cut in pay. He had a very poor season last summer and the Cards have no guarantee that he'll prove worth even the salary they offer him.

Cards Could Do Without Services of Hack

Furthermore, the Cards don't have to worry whether he signs up or no. They won the world's championship without him last season and have every reason to believe that they can do the same this coming season.

That's a case of true economy.

The Terry matter is entirely different. Memphis Bill is asked to take a 40 per cent cut in the $25,000 salary he received last year. He refuses. You can't blame him.

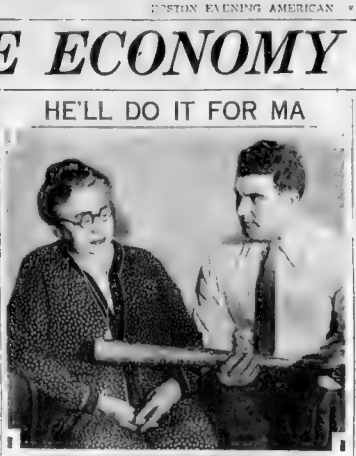
He was the best first-sacker and finished in a tie for the batting championship in the National League last season. He earned his salary and while hard times and contracts may demand that all contracts be reduced more or less, Bill has every right to expect to receive within at least 15 per cent of what he was paid in '31.

If Terry should hold out, his loss would likely cost the Giants several times the money they would save in his contract. The McGrawmen appear to be the only club in the circuit that has a fair chance of beating out the Cards in the impending race. They would probably have their troubles finishing in the first division without the slugging first sacker.

In other words, they are running the risk of losing the flag and the hundreds of thousands of dollars that go with it by offering Terry a contract that he may refuse or, if he does accept, will leave him dissatisfied, and all for the sake of saving approximately $5000.

That's false economy.

HE'LL DO IT FOR MA



Do what? Why, sock the old apple for better than .300 and continue to lead the National League in backstopping. That's what the famous "Shanty" Hogan is telling Mrs. Delia Hogan as they sit together in their Somerville home. The noted slugger of the Giants leaves for the Southern training camp in about a fortnight. (Photo by Woodruff, I. N. S.)

Schoolboy Notes

—By GEORGE W. GRIMM—

In an effort to get into the fight for the championship the Jamaica Plain High sextet has been juggled up with Capt. Charlie Hoar moving up to center and Stan Wollian shifting from center to wing.

Hoar is a great scoring ace and, although he is just as valuable on defense, the Plainer coach wants to get a scoring punch. Jamaica was undefeated a year ago, but Latin conquered the champions last Saturday.

Next Saturday morning Jamaica will clash with English, an even tougher foe than Latin, it seems. English is led by "Joker" Methermott, while another grid hero, "Red" Costello, is a bulwark on defense.

Other games on next Saturday's program bring together Hyde Park and Dorchester, Memorial and Brighton, Latin and B. C. High, Commerce and Mechanics, South Boston and Trade, and Charlestown and East Boston.

A very important tilt is on tap in the hockey at the Boston Garden for the championship the Jamaica Plain High sextet has been juggled up with Capt. Charlie Hoar moving up to center and Stan Wollian shifting from center to wing.

Newton is the only undefeated and untied team in the circuit thus far and on the high road to the championship held for the past three seasons by Melrose.

Newton comes to battle with Medford, the big threat and newcomer in the loop. Medford is expected to be at full strength with Captain Sampson at defense and Newton will be given its first big grand test.

Melrose should pick up a few points at the expense of Cambridge Latin and may give the Canaans bad sheilacking, being a bit peeved after their 1-1 tie last week with Arlington, which dropped them from the top and gave Newton the leadership.

The two other Garden games will find Belmont batting Arlington and Rindge tackling Stoneham.

An important track meet is billed on Saturday with Medford entertaining Lynn English. Medford was nosed out by Newton last week. Lynn English hasn't been in a meet yet but Coach Whelan got a line on material last Saturday during an inter-class carnival.

BARTUSH SAYS HE'LL PIN GUS

Billy Bartush, former University of Chicago star, says he will consider Gus Sonnenberg former world's champion, in their bout at Paul Bowser's show at the Arena tomorrow night.

Bartush and Sonny will wrestle to a finish, best two falls out of three. The Chicago mat star is one of the best of the new crop of youngsters who have come to the front during the past two years.

The 35-minute time limit contest between Nick Lutze and Jim Browning has also aroused considerable interest.

Sonnenberg, Bartush, Lutze and Browning are all shooting for title contests with Henri DeGlane. The latter recently returned from France and says he is prepared to defend his title against all-comers.

Seven other bouts are on the program. Leo Numa, the young Samoan from the University of Washington, will wrestle Numa has made a host of friends here in Boston and he has kept the record he brought from the Pacific coast clean as a whistle. In his short but tempestuous career on the mat, he has yet to lose a fall, and he has tackled some mighty tough wrestlers.

B.C. NEWSPAPER HITS H. C. PLAN

The "Heights," official news organ at Boston College, today editorially attacked a proposal on the part of Holy Cross to move the date of the annual Boston College-Holy Cross game back one week and to alternate the playing of the game between Boston and Worcester.

The "Purple" Holy Cross publications "see no reason why the game should be moved from the date the Saturday before Thanksgiving, the date of the Harvard and Yale game is over, when Harvard is facing Yale in the stadium, the B. C.-H. C. game could be held at Worcester."

The "Heights" deplores these changes on the grounds that it would bring about the severing of connections between B. C. and B. U., which has for years occupied the date suggested by the Purple.

The "Heights" continues: "We are wary of moving the game back to the date of the Harvard-Yale game. The Saturday before Thanksgiving belongs traditionally to this great sporting event. The entrance of Boston College and Holy Cross into the arena can do little to add gate, prestige or prominence to which the Jesuit college conflict is entitled. Both games belong to New England and New England has a right to expect the opportunity to see both."

Hialeah Park Race Starts Tomorrow

Miami, Fla., Jan. 13 (AP)—Hialeah Park opens its winter racing season tomorrow, with 61 thoroughbreds nominated for the Hialeah Inaugural Handicap, the feature event.

Approximately 800 horses are stabled at the big track, which has won widespread comment because of its unusual beauty. The Inaugural Handicap, $2500 added, is at six furlongs, for three-year-olds and up.

Ship Snow by Freight to Hold Ski Meet

Fox River Grove, Ill., Jan. 13 (INS)—Six carloads of snow were received here today from Escanaba, Mich., insurance against postponement of the Norge Ski Club's 20th annual ski jump tournament, scheduled next Sunday.

NO BOSTON GO FOR MAXIE

North Adams, Jan. 13—Max Schmeling's manager, Joe Jacobs is not interested in a bout between Jack Sharkey and the champion in Boston under the auspices of the American Legion he stated here today.

Other engagements will prevent Max from entering into an agreement with Sharkey for the Boston engagement said

Jerry Sullivan to Enter Pro Ring

Jerry Sullivan, well known Dorchester welterweight, is planning to enter the professional ring ranks in a short time

During the past year and a half Jerry has hung up a fine record in his campaigns in the amateur ranks, winning 31 out of 35 bouts. He has appeared in action in shows at Mechanics Building, Boston, and in many Merrimac Valley cities. He is hopeful of continuing his winning ways in the professional ranks and she can't drive a lick.

SWIM STAR IS SPEED DEMON

Seattle, Wash., Jan 13 (AP)

A brilliant roadster came into her life recently and since then there has been no depression in the traffic problem at the local police department She goes everywhere with the top and the accelerator down

Speed fascinates her In the water she holds 16 world records and 53 titles for 67 American marks in the free-style division. Travel to her is synonymous with airplanes. She likes to play poker, but she tosses the cards around so fast that there is nothing but misery in the game for others.

Right now she is beset with all the tremors and excitement of 17 growing up Only in the past year has she learned to dance She wants to be a movie actress

Bathrobe and Old Suit Helene's Superstitions

Helene has two superstitions about her swimming and she is very serious about them.

One is an old gray bathrobe that always accompanies her to the side of the pool. The other is a black silk bathing suit, the one she broke her first record in.

The suit is worn out now and wouldn't pass the censors, but it must last until her record-breaking career is over. Her compromise with the legal requirements is another suit worn over the old black one.

The coming Olympics in Los Angeles with the responsibility of carrying America's burden in the women events, frighten her Particularly is she apprehensive of Mrgda Lemkey of Hungary, who is reported to have swum 100 meters in 1:09 2-5. Helene's record is 1:06 4-5.

There is no off season in swimming, winning 31 out of 35 battles. He has appeared in action in shows at Mechanics Building, Boston, and in many Merrimac Valley cities. He is hopeful of continuing his winning ways in the professional ranks and she can't drive a lick.

SHARKEY FIT FOR ACTION ---RUNYON

By DAMON RUNYON

New York, Jan. 13 (U.S.)—The terrible Sharkey man, who is periodically read out of the heavyweight championship party by infuriated sports scribes, and read right back into it again by these same scribes after they cool out a bit, has gone into what the boys tail light training up in Boston.

The Sharkey man doesn't know exactly what he is training for at the moment, but he has a vague idea that it may be for a bout with Herr Max Schmeling next summer. Anyway, he is hitting the trail, New England roads o' morn nose and doing calisthenics in a gymnasium in the afternoon.

Sharkey always keeps himself in fairly good physical condition. In his private life he is all those things that managers claim for a thousand other gladiators, and which few of them actually are

He is a decent home-loving guy. He sticks around his own fireside playing with his kid. He figures in on those practices calculated to make a bum of a fellow

Sharkey Always Near Best Condition

So when he starts training Sharkey really hasn't far to go That is to say, he has a good foundation to work on. If Sharkey had a great letch for a pot of money, he could fight every month with little more and tear on his physical structure because of the regularity of his manner of living and because of his easy style of workmanship

As it is, Sharkey fights so infrequently that he generally worries about the possibility of "blowing up." He told me that was his chief concern when he fought Walker, although I thought that was a silly thing for Walker to worry about more than Sharkey.

Now Sharkey has had an entire professional boxing career, Sharkey has engaged comparatively few battles He hasn't turned the 45 mark as yet in number of fights Gene Tunney fought 68 battles before he stopped. Dempsey has had 79 recorded contests

Sharkey Most Inactive of Heavy Ring Stars

So, off the figures, the Sharkey man has been comparatively inactive across a stretch of nine years, the most inactive, in fact, of the heavies. Stribling, Stribling Loughran, Paolino, Griffiths, Walker, Risko, Carnera and even Sharkey's own protege, Ernie Schaaf have had anywhere from ten to twice as many bouts as Sharkey.

Sharkey is rising 30. He hasn't a mark on him. While some of the experts think he has seen his best days, I think Sharkey can go on fighting for several years to come.

He would dearly love to win the heavyweight title, which is only natural.

He is the luckiest fighter in history in the matter of opportunity in the political intrigue that has crept into the boxing racket around New York. Sharkey has always turned up the key man

Experts Stand by Sharkey Standard

He has an amazing hold upon many of the experts. When he has failed to knock out an opponent he has received handy decisions upon the ground that he wasn't trying

After his fight with Walker many of his staunchest friends among the experts dismissed him finally and forever as a heavyweight title threat. But after thinking it over awhile they decided (again) that Sharkey must have been "carrying" Walker.

So they are back in his corner demanding hotly that Schmeling give him another match. Which is exactly what Schmeling is going to do, of course. I am in favor of the idea myself. And if Walker licks Schmeling, I am also in favor of Walker giving Sharkey another match

Swedish Team Is Bringing Own Food

New York, Jan 13 (INS) The Swedish Olympic team, due here tomorrow night, is bringing its own food with the idea of being in the best possible condition for the games in Los Angeles next month. The Swedish foodstuffs such as brown beans, salt herring, oatmeal and knackebrod are calculated to generate stamina

JIM WALLIS IN BOSTON DEBUT

Jim Wallis, former Holy Cross football star who has won 20 straight mat bouts, will make his debut here at a Massachusetts Wrestling Association tournament at Mechanics Building tonight.

Jim has been in a great demand in New York State where he has been making good and has not had a chance to meet any of the local grapplers. He is down to tackle Dynamite Dunn in a 15-minute time limit battle.

Jimmy Trephon, the Greek from Florida, will tackle Paul Adams of Macon Georgia They will meet in best two falls out of three in a positive finish Trephon is the favorite

Sharing honors with the main bout will be the battle between Ted Germaine the South Boston Terror and Harry Landry, Vermont Harry is also a new comer to the local mat

Art Flynn Lawrence will stack up against Frank Lesch, the Lithuanian. Among the leading preliminaries will be Sahib Sridez, the Turk, versus Charley Plains Rutland, George Linnehan Chiffons is also meets a tartar in Steve Pissot Hartford, Conn.

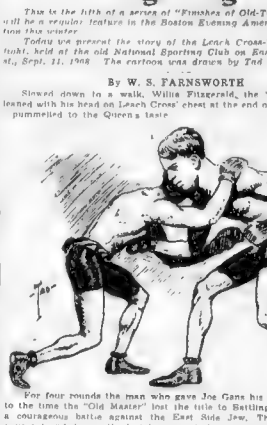
When Cross Played With 'Fighting Harp'

This is the fifth of a series of "Finishes of Old-Time Fights" that will be a regular feature in the Boston Evening American Sports Section this winter.

Today we present the story of the Leach Cross-Willie Fitzgerald fight, held at the old National Sporting Club on East Twenty-fourth st., Sept. 11, 1908. The cartoon was drawn by Tad

By W. S. FARNSWORTH

Slowed down to a walk, Willie Fitzgerald, the "Fighting Harp," leaned with his head on Leach Cross' chest at the end of the sixth round pummelled to the Queen's taste



For four rounds the man who gave Joe Gans his hardest fight up to the time the "Old Master" lost the title to Battling Nelson, put up a courageous battle against the East Side Jew. Then his strength gave out and during the last two rounds he was nothing but a punching bag

Fitzgerald Bent Over

The referee, Charley White, brought them together to shake hands at the start of the sixth As soon as this formality was over Cross charged at the Irishman. He pounded the poor tired Fitz on the body, with both hands as the latter bent over

Out on His Feet at Bell

Cross pounded with both hands on the body, while Fitz staggered from post to post and was unable to get his guard up. At the bell Willie was leaning on Cross with his right arm across his swollen stomach and his left hanging useless by his side.

Another 30 seconds and Fitzgerald would have undoubtedly gone down for the fatal ten

BETTER LEADERSHIP IN AUTO INDUSTRY

—By B. C. FORBES

It is more refreshing to mix with the automobile men now in New York than with men in the financial world. Automobile executives, almost without exception, are putting forth strenuous efforts to arouse the buying public's interest. They are confident that the worst is over and that 1932 will bring improvement. They expect, however, to have to exercise every ounce of their energy to book business even for extraordinarily attractive values. They don't expect to get anything without working for it, and working hard.

The idlers are doing rather long spanking their days whining and deluging one another with tears.

Autos Give Work to One in Nine

The magnitude of the motor industry is astonishing. The retail value of cars and trucks sold last year exceeded two and a half billions of dollars. The original cost of the 26,000,000 cars now in use was approximately $24,000,000,000—twenty-four thousand millions of dollars. One out of every nine persons working today is employed, directly or indirectly, by the automobile industry. This is more than three times the number of railroad employes.

America Best, Even at W[illegible]

This may interest those w[illegible] try are almost as bad as [illegible] John N. Willys, former [illegible] to Poland, he remarked w[illegible] tries of the world familiar to [illegible] for this which of all the countries he would prefer to live in:

"This country, even at the depths, is better than any other country at the height of a boom."

That is exac[illegible] have lived in other lands.

Plan to Discourage Hoarding

F. H. Johnston, president of a large concern, impressed by the fact that "one year's interest on the currency now being hoarded would equal the sum total that is being raised for emergency relief," has written President Robert P. Randolph, of the Chicago Association of Commerce, pointing out most "hoarding is on the part of those employed, certainly not on the part of the unemployed," and offering this suggestion:

"Employers could cause the major portion of hoarded money to be placed in circulation immediately by making inquiry in the proper way of employes, asking them to show evidence that their funds are either invested or on deposit in some bank. The employe who has not sufficient confidence in the scheme of things to invest his money or place it on deposit in some bank of his choosing can profitably be replaced by someone who has that confidence.

"Those who at this time take all their money out of deposit boxes and place it in circulation immediately substitute confidence for fear and become more valuable to humanity."

He invites Chicago's Commerce Association to consider sponsoring such a movement among its members.

Hoarders are hinderers.

An increasing number of my friends are now investing in bonds and stocks which have declined inordinately. Congress, the public, every employe, even the customarily obstructive interstate commerce commission are convinced that our transportation companies need, in the interest of everybody, to be given a chance to maintain their solvency.

PHELPS BOOMS HEARST PLAN

New York, Jan. 13—Five billion dollars spent now on a comprehensive federal government program of public works would restore prosperity, according to a book by former Assemblyman Phelps, published today.

The book, "Our Defenses, Within and Without," gives hearty indorsement to the "prosperity loan" proposed by William Randolph Hearst. Phelps wrote:

"Mr. Hearst advocates now that the only way to alleviate distress of employment for this period of enforced idleness is to authorize a federal bond issue of $5,000,000,000, which undoubtedly would be oversubscribed. I am of the opinion Mr. Hearst is right in his major conclusions.

"A program of public works should include construction of highways, waterways, measures for flood control, water and power conservation.

"Five billion dollars spent in this manner would restore prosperity. Out of such prosperity the national debt could be reduced and eventually paid."

"Our Defense, Within and Without," published by T. J. Powers & Co., is, as a whole, a survey of national needs and problems.

Prohibition is attacked with sharp criticism. Phelps estimating that the country is spending to $48,000,000 a year on liquor with no real saving. It has been demonstrated, he wrote, that prohibition and prosperity did not go hand in hand, as it had been predicted by Chester I. Campbell of Quincy, by a narrow margin.

Grains Are Easy in Chicago Market

Chicago, Jan. 13—Fresh moderate downturns of Chicago wheat values early today followed new setbacks in wheat quotations at Liverpool. Argentine shippers were reported offering wheat urgently in efforts to dispose of an unsalable surplus before British quota laws would be put into effect.

Underwood Elliott Sales Increased

New York, Jan. 13—President Philip Wagoner, Underwood Elliott Fisher Co., says sales increased consistently during the last three months of 1931, billings in December being more than $350,000 over November or nearly three times the increase in December, 1930, billings over the preceding month.

Financial News, Stocks, Bonds and Comment

STATE ST.

Hears:

That the action of the price averagers on Tuesday had all the ear marks of a genuine "punchout." This in no way precludes the chance of additional gains, carrying prices above the highs of last week. Last Friday the probabilities of a technical setback were outlined here. The approximate figure given for a reaction was 73-75 on the Dow Jones industrial index. In view of later price action this area can be revised upward to 74-76.

The Rails

Despite the many nice things that are being said about the rails, and their action apparently confirms most of the rumors, it seems well to leave the group alone [illegible] The brotherhoods are not going to Chicago in the passive way some brokers wires indicate. Rather are they anticipating an opportunity to make a trade. It is thought they will ask shorter working hours in return for a lower wage scale. While many rail leaders are said to feel the time is not yet ripe to follow in regard to labor, they also feel that such a request at this time would defeat their real motive which is a saving in the cost of furnishing service.

The refusal of rail executives to accept such a trade might provoke labor and result in a deadlock. Considering the agrarian decision of last week, the recent rate pooling plea and the proposed Emergency Credit Corporation, the carriers are now in position for a long drawn out fight for permanently lower wages.

Rail Bonds

On the other side of the picture rail bonds are distinctly saying that the promise of relief by national economy has greatly strengthened their investment status no matter how other issues are acting. It is among the carrier liens that the investor will continue to find the most attractive purchase in the opinion of reliable observers. They further point out that a wage agreement is not going to bring back traffic, which is, in the final analysis, the root of all railway problems. To recognize the chief cause of disappointment this early in a period of rehabilitation, is only proper and usually results in recognition of the most profitable investment policy.

WOOL MEN IN MOVE TO MAKE SALES LARGER

By FRANK H. MELOON

A telegram sent by President Robert L. Turnbull, of the Boston Wool Trade Assn., to President Frank J. Hagenbarth of the National Wool Growers Assn., in convention at Salt Lake City, shows the new spirit 1932 has brought into the industry. It is as follows:

"The Boston Wool Trade Assn. send cordial greetings for a successful convention. Believing that National Wool Week was the first step in the right direction, our association is giving serious consideration to the plan contained and thoroughly organized methods of promoting the use and sales of wool apparel through publicity.

"It is apparent that to attain results such a movement necessarily demands the complete cooperation of every branch of the industry. We trust that you will find it possible to bring this matter before your present convention for discussion."

Although saying nothing right now, the trade went on record in September last as opposed to the reduction of railroad wages. He declared then that an "inflationative" to the rate raise, later refused by the Interstate Commerce Commission, rejected wage cut, raise, by the way was hailed by the Cleveland Chamber of Commerce as a "prosperity step." This action could attract outsiders into the market, just as Steel common often has resulted in increased purchases of Bethlehem. It has been the leader of the industrials. Thus far the public interest in the rails has been showing a slower rate of increase than in the industrials.

Rails Could Be Leaders

Railroad shares could lead the market in the coming days. These are many factors to encourage buying in these stocks. Of foremost importance is the growing confidence that the carriers will shortly obtain a reduction in wages which will permit them to make a comparatively better showing of net income in the coming months than was believed possible only a short time ago.

Group in Auburn Active

The group in Auburn is active again and has made that stock one of the outstanding leaders. Ten days ago when Auburn was reputationary the rumor was widely circulated that the pool in the issue has been liquidated. The decline in the issue was in line with the wishes of the group and the report that the stock had been abandoned by these operators was without foundation.

Stock Is Responsive to New Buying

Instead, there was accumulation on a scale, as the group replaced shares which had been sold at higher levels for profits when the issue was strong. With the line reaccumulated, the stock has been most responsive to new buying and short covering. In some quarters it is believed that the company will make an excellent record at the automobile shows with its new models and that this has been a factor in bringing activity to the stock.

Bendix Outlook Is Promising

It is probable that Bendix has a better outlook than most other issues in its price class. The company has great diversification of products, the management having added to its line rapidly during the year. This should be an important factor in the future. Many of its latest products have been adopted for a number of the new models which are being shown at the automobile show now in progress in this city. Excellent support has been seen in the stock since the break. It has broken through 18 in the past.

Big Traders Plan Florida Vacations

Several prominent operators who switched their market positions at the end of December are now relying on prices a week or so ago are about to depart for their annual winter Florida vacations. In fact reports state the vanguard of the "party" is already at the Southern resorts. The market will probably be augmented within the course of the next few days by prominent traders who are also on their constructive manuvers. These interests have given the list its recent aggressive leadership and includes former "bears" who covered their short commitments during the sessions late in December and early the month.

Low Priced Stock Pools Showing Life

With the market indicating willingness to push forward increasing the volume of business appearing in low priced issues, it would be no exaggeration to say that more groups are operating in those stocks than for several months. Many industrial shares virtually neglected for a long period become into great prominence with unusual vigor. The tip-off on pool operations is usually given in a string of hundred share transactions just before the close of the market.

Chesapeake & Ohio Favored by Yield

Investment buying of Chesapeake & Ohio has been virtually negligible despite the fact that it is one of the two important carriers which earned 1931 dividends by a liberal margin. Estimated place final income for last year at around $3.90 a share against the $2.50 dividend rate. The stock yields in excess of 6½ per cent on the present rate and is selling for less than 10 times earning power. Being primarily a coal carrier, Chesapeake's principal traffic item probably will never be seriously threatened by truck competition. Higher freight rates and expected lower wages are expected to boost Chesapeake's earnings to approximately $4.50 a share this year on the 1931 volume of traffic.

Johns-Manville Dividend Rumors

Persistent rumors that the new Johns-Manville pool has effectively dispersed rumors that current earnings of the company casts doubt over maintenance of the $1 annual dividend rate.

American Telephone Earnings Forecasts

Reports that Amer can Telephone earnings will show substantial gain in 1931 gave the short interest in the stock an uneasy feeling. This contingent developed little comfort from the fact that these predictions implied that the 9 payment would be retained a while longer. The inner conservative element in the list forecasts with reservations.

Radio Pool Wins Friends

Bull pool in Radio common was reported to have won some rather substantial profits, including individuals who previously had been decidedly bearish on the stock. It is now generally conceded a save stock support to the issue during recent sessions.

United Aircraft Latest Pool Pet

Certain individuals very prominent in the market for United Aircraft during the great bull days are once again attempting a constructive operation in the stock. Their attempts the last two years have been dismal failures.

Today's News of Live Stocks in Wall Street

WITH the market easy, offerings have been well absorbed on the decline and trading not very active. Numerous brokerage advices were to the effect that careful trading commitments could be made on further weakness, but that did not appear today

Associated Gas Output Is Larger

Announcement was made today that December electric output of subsidiaries of Associated Gas & Electric System was 271,021,611 kwh. up 4 per cent over December, 1930. For 1931, electric output totaled 3,223,307,128 kwh, a gain of 187,418,803, or 6.2 per cent over 1930.

Public Interest in Market Larger

Public interest has been larger than in some time, Commission brokers report that customers who sold stocks late in December or who were on the sidelines for some time have been coming back as buyers. Those for they have confined their purchases to standard stocks which would naturally have the most appealing if the advance is to carry through. However, the ability of a number of low-priced issues to stage rallies and hold has been attracting a moderate outside following also.

Banking Support in N. Y. Central

Banking support has been coming into New York Central consistently. The buying has been credited to the same interests who were responsible for starting the upturns in some of the leading industrials last week. It is probable that the basis for the support had been the belief that the railroad shares will act much better when the various factors seem to be settled are out of the way.

Attracts Outside Interests to Market

Central always has been a popular stock with the public and its action could attract outsiders into the market, just as Steel common often has resulted in increased purchases of Bethlehem. It has been the leader of the industrials. Thus far the public interest in the rails has been showing a slower rate of increase than in the industrials.

Rails Could Be Leaders

Railroad shares could lead the market in the coming days. These

STOCKS RENEW RALLY IN WALL ST. DEALINGS

New York, Jan. 13—Important shares renewed their rally in dealings in Wall St. today, with trading rather quiet. Gains of 1 to 5 or more points soon spread over the big list.

Tobaccos appeared in special demand, with Reynolds "B," Liggett & Myers "B," Lorillard and American Tobacco up ½ point or more and American Tobacco "B" up 2 points.

RAILS WELL BOUGHT

Railroad shares were well bought. Point or better advances came for Atchison and Southern Pacific, with Union Pacific up more than 2 points.

At the same time there were gains of a point or better for U. S. Steel, Coca-Cola, National Dairy, Public Service of N. J., American Can, Borden, J. I. Case, Texas Gulf Sulphur, Consolidated Gas of N. Y., du Pont, Eastman, Gold Dust, United Aircraft, United Drug, Westinghouse and others.

Gains of 2 or more points appeared for American Tobacco "B," Allied Chemical and Safeway Stores. General Railway Signal preferred proved the feature of the Auto quickly rose around 4 points.

"MILD INFLATION"

Wall Street showed lively interest in the report that the Federal Reserve Board, in conjunction with leading commercial bankers, was embarking upon a "mild inflation" program to arrest the two-year deflation of security prices.

Over $3,500,000,000 of gold reserves, it was stated recently by Gov. Harrison of the New York Reserve Bank, could be made available for stimulating greater use of the nation's credit supply.

Further modest gain was reported in steel production, now standing at 25 per cent of the country's capacity, but Iron Age again noted that new buying was slow in materializing. Hope was expressed, however, that an upturn would be seen either this month or in February.

A sharp gain was reported in car loadings for the week ended Jan. 2, This weekly increase amounted to 61,736 cars and, measured on a seasonal basis, was the sharpest for any one week since last April.

Further increases in export prices, bringing the export figure to 7% cents and the domestic to 7¼, was in line with the Steel Corporation actions. Domestic copper is now 1¼ cents above its all time low price reached last year.

Sterling cables were unchanged at $3.41.

CURB CHANGES ARE NARROW

New York, Jan. 13—The curb market was again a listless trading affair in today's session, with the general run of active issues heading a narrow path in their price movements.

Utilities were a trifle improved, with Electric Bond & Share up ½ point, Brazil Traction up ¼ point and gains of lesser importance recorded in American Superpower and the like.

Cities service again met resistance around its previous close, with the stock alternately ranging between 6⅝ and 6¼. The preferred, however, continued its slow plodding upturn, with a further gain of ⅝ to 34, establishing it at the highest level of the recovery.

Aluminum made a better than average showing in the specialty section, with a gain of a point. Other usually active industrials held at fractional distance from their previous closings.

Atlas Utilities attracted the greatest speculative demand in the investment trust group, edging up ¾. Hydro Electric securities also improved its position slightly with a gain of ¼.

Fat Girls! Here's A Tip For You

All over the world Kruschen Salts is appealing to girls and women who strive for an attractive, free from fat figure that cannot fail to win admiration.

Here's the recipe that banishes fat and brings into blossom all the natural attractiveness that every woman possesses and does it SAFELY and HARMLESSLY.

In the morning take one-half teaspoon of Kruschen Salts in a glass of hot water before breakfast—cut down on pastry and fatty meats—go light on potatoes, butter, cream and sugar.

"It's the little daily dose that takes off the fat" and "brings that Kruschen feeling" of energetic health and activity that is reflected in bright eyes, clear skin, cheerful vivacity and charming figure.

But be sure for your health's sake that you get Kruschen. A bottle that lasts 4 weeks costs but little. You can always get Kruschen at all druggists and money back if not satisfied with results after first bottle.

Snapshots at Random!

NOT WITHOUT ITS HUMOR these raids on Broadway's night spots . . . The descent of the gendarmes on the Five o'Clock Club Friday night for instance . . . The panicky waiters, aware that musicians are usually immune to arrest, rush for the drums and the violins and the saxes and begin pounding and blowing away in raucous discordances . . . The Stork Club phone . . . The Mona Lisa . . . The Five o'Clock . . . Zelli's Royal Box . . . Others doomed . . . It may mean a return in favor of the moribund night clubs, but right now the only effect of the pogroms is the quenching of Manhattan's hilarious night life and the promotion of big private parties in homes . . . Friday night at the El Patio . . . an arrogant mannered, be-monocled lad superbly indifferent to stares, holding his head in all the dignity of Peter Arno caricatured downagain with a tall, pretty girl . . . At another club, Ben Bernie's bodyguard (the former Fil Widener and) Alex Wakefield whispering through the Emil Coleman microphone . . . Lunch at the Club Richman . . . Ann Pennington staring over at a table groaning under the weight of pairs of shoes, four pairs of which belong respectively to George Gershwin, Peter Arno, Lou Holtz and Harold Arlen.

A gathering Saturday night at the Village studio of Armond Hammer, just back from a year in Europe . . . Nat Lief and Michael Cleary (composers of "I'll Putcha Pitcher") in the throes of putting through their latest collaborations for a forthcoming show . . . Bob Garland and Bob Coleman, Southerners, and rival dramatic critics, discuss the asplan tragedy, "Never No More," which opened at the Hudson Thursday night and agree that lynching is no longer good form . . . Dr. Leo Miedler with the blond Jeannets de Cordet's French shoes . . . Tete-a-tete with Broadwayese and expounds his theory of anatomical perfection in professional euphemisms . . . Maxine Darrell, the tall brunettish Scandals gal, in a luridly red two-piece pajama lounging robe, one of which hikes up every time she bends over, to reveal a broad expanse of pink and white back, moves from group to group to insist that intellectuality is in the dumps . . . Miss Darrell when asked to explain what she means by it, Ben Piatt and Lou Holtz discuss the trend of modern talkering. Piatt holding out for broad topics . . . "You can't get a decent background for a carnation," he explains patiently, "unless the lapel is at least four inches wide below the collar notch" . . . We dash over to a new Village rendezvous and fall into the effusive embrace of the blonde Jerry Blanchard . . . "I'm going to Boston tomorrow to cover the Commonwealth Grove. Couldn't you," she pleads, "find time to come up and see me? I've got a darb lined that'll get under your skin."

At the Cotton Club (Sunday night a week ago)...Cab Calloway's "scat-singing"..."Hi de hi, hodeho deho"....A lass, a small plaid bef, tilted rakishly over her forehead, hums...Ina Claire...At another table, her shoulders moving restlessly, another pretty gal...Lilyan Tashman...Across the floorway a girl of a different type of beauty, her face expressionless but her fingers parading back and forth over the table...Beatrice Lillie...Bill (stage) Boyd enters as the ample-bodied, throaty Letitia Hill warbles her ribald double entendre ditty ...Aunt Jemima applauds enthusiastically...The three spot-pian dancing whirlwinds, Dickie Wells, Mordecai and Brown... Harlem's Beau Brummels and Don Juans...Wednesday morning...Rain...Heavy, wet rain ...10 o'clock and we try to shake the sleep out of our systems as we drive down to meet Lee and Natalie returning from Bermuda...Grouchy, skeptical customs guards..."Natalie comes flying toward us..."Ooh, what a surprise I got for you, Daddy," she shouts shrilly, "I brought you back a bottle of whiskey."...We shudder... "What do they do to offspring of columnists who smuggle in whiskey?..."Sh-h," we hiss, hoarsely, and wonder anxiously if the customs inspectors have heard...It turns out to be Natalie's brilliant idea of a gag.

Friday night at Michel's . . . Walter Donaldson, the song-writer, slumped back in an easy chair, while Bert Lahr shifts back and forth nervously, on one foot and then the other . . . "What difference if the Democrats get in or the republicans?" he shouts. "If a show's no good, it's a flop. It's good, you gotta trust to luck" . . . Lahr drops into Michel's again for a few seconds . . . Harry Rosenthal, the pianist comic, and Jack Kofoed, columnist, are sandwiched oblongs in a backgammon tilt . . . Rosenthal wins $4.25 . . . "I got my expenses for the Mayfair tonight," he gurgles . . . Ziegfeld gets who go into strenuous rehearsal Tuesday for the new show which means a cessation of play for weeks to come . . .

Early Sunday morning in crowded Reuben's . . . Lou Holtz leans in his chair and frowns at nothing in particular . . . Reuben bustles over . . . "You tried my cheese cake?" he asks us. "No talk of cheese cake. You try mine. Melts in your mouth" . . . I'll have some apple pie," chirps the sidetrailing nous Robinson gal sweetly . . . Thursday night in Dinty Moore's a few Yale men leans over to whisper . . . "You're looking like you're going to pass out any minute, Joe. We're worried about you. You take life too serious. Have you met Armida?" . . . At the premiere of "Cynara" for Mary Hay Hudson later that night . . . A drama of southern backwoods life . . . Mrs. Gilbert Miller beckons whispers, hear it's terrifically harrowing" . . . On Wednesday morning, received of a apparently thought so, too, for in the reviews Friday, we discover that the word "harrowing" appears from once to three times in every piece . . . Carl Van Vechten, all set to be found at any moment, sits serenely in his aisle seat, absorbing the tragedy of the drama . . . Burns and Clarence did, also . . .

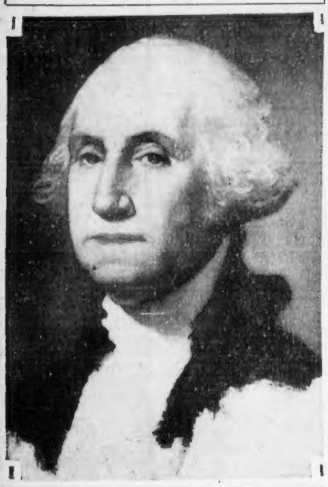
Keep Our Picture Here!

Then We're Sure of It



GILBERT STUART PORTRAIT OF GEORGE WASHINGTON

Look at this portrait of George Washington.

Then turn to a dollar bill, if you have one these days, and you will find it reproduced there.

It is the official portrait of the Father of Our Country, done by Gilbert Stuart, our famous New England artist of Colonial Days. And is generally regarded as the best likeness of him.

We of Boston have this portrait.

You can see it any day, at the Boston Athenaeum, along with other objects of priceless historical and traditional merit.

Washington sat for that painting here in Boston, when he made the first Presidential trip in our history. It is also believed he gave Mr. Stuart other sittings at Portsmouth, N. H., at the same time.

Anyway, the George Washington Bicentennial Commission wants to get it to Washington, to be used in display during this 200th anniversary year of the Father of the Country.

And Mr. C. K. Bolton, the Librarian of the Athenaeum, refuses to let it go.

His refusal is based on two reasons. One, the directors of the Athenaeum decline to loan it to ANYBODY. Secondly, it is to be used in our own display in celebration of Washington's anniversary.

We suspect that beneath Mr. Bolton's formal reasons, there is a deep strain of patriotism.

We of Boston are proud of our American history, not ashamed of it, and welcome every opportunity to put it on proper display.

Once this excellent portrait got away from us, we might never get it back.

Also, Mr. Bolton may fear that it might be put down in some cellar with the rubbish, as the Metropolitan Museum of New York did with the patriotic painting, "Washington Crossing the Delaware." Mr. Bolton is a practical as well as an artistic man.

Bay Rum Prohibition

Captain John M. Anderson, a veteran of the Boston Police Department, spoke before the Young People's Society of the Mt. Vernon Church on the subject of "Combating Crime."

"The police are up against a stone wall on this prohibition stuff," said this veteran.

"Most of the speakeasies have these barricaded doors you have heard about, and they are about as easy to get into as the Charlestown Navy Yard.

"It takes about twenty minutes to break in a door with a sledgehammer.

"Most of these places have a dump into which they pour the liquor. After that they pour a disinfectant. And when the police finally get in they can't get the odor of liquor, much less liquor itself.

"In the lower courts we have some luck in convictions. But when the defendants appeal, and the case goes to a jury, out the window goes the case. The public is not favorable to this prohibition law and the jury verdict is usually 'not guilty.'

"Most of the drinkers of today drink bay rum. So you could close all the speakeasies today and there still would be drunks around."

What a sermon, although this veteran no doubt did not intend it as such.

Barricaded vice dens, some of them equipped like arsenals, in the heart of a great city; jurors who violate the law without loss of conscience and, in a spirit of fairness, refuse to convict others who do the same thing; bay rum consumption, dangerous to health. When legalized, palatable beer would suffice.

The evidence against prohibition is overwhelming.

Words of the Wise Men

Good name in man and women, dear my Lord, is the immediate jewel of their souls. —Shakespeare.

sarily, a moral being that, when he denies the existence of all morality, that very denial already becomes the foundation of a new morality. —Maeterlinck.

Now this is how I define talent: It is a gift God has given us in secret, which we reveal without knowing it. —Lamartine.

Let's Put THIS Picture in the Cellar

By NELSON HARDING

That famous historical painting, "Washington Crossing the Delaware," has been removed from the galleries of the Metropolitan Museum of Art and stored in the basement.

The picture shown above is the one which should be relegated to the cellar. Although of more recent date, it is one with which Americans have become all too familiar.

"Administration Crossing the Atlantic" is not an inspiring work of art, and the figures are far from heroic. Unlike the soldiers of '76, these voyagers hook up to the dangerous ice floes instead of avoiding them.

Then restore "Washington Crossing the Delaware" to a place where Americans can still see it. N. H.

Listen, World!

By Elsie Robinson

"Feminine Attitude?"

"You don't write like a woman," says he, peevishly. "You haven't a feminine attitude."

Why should a woman think differently than a man?

Why shouldn't a woman be interested in the same things that interest a man?

Why shouldn't she know as much about her world as a man, and feel about it in the same way?

Why should we expect women to feel and express only pretty, d pleasant things, and expect men to express powerful and passionate things?

If you come right down to cases, a woman actually has need to be more powerful than a man, and to think more clearly and forcefully.

Men make history, but women make men, particularly here in America, and history is only as great as the men who make it. Which, considering recent current events, isn't saying much.

PERHAPS IF WE EXPECTED MORE OUT OF WOMEN, WE'D GET MORE OUT OF MEN.

I suspect that one of the great troubles with the world today is that we expect females to be nice girls and sweet wives and dear old mothers, instead of expecting them to be regular, two-fisted human beings.

Whereupon, they put talcum powder on their baby boys instead of boxing gloves; and bye and bye, when those boys go to Congress, look what happens!

Well, if you insist that women shall stay at home and raise flowers, you must expect a lot of mignonette in the voters' list.

It should be considered as shameful for a woman to know nothing of her country's affairs—to be ignorant of "the seamy side of life"—as for a man.

There is absolutely no excuse in 1932 for a "feminine attitude." Brains have no sex. Backbones have no gender. If women demand equal rights, they should have equal information and equal wallop to back up that information.

Why don't I write like a woman?

Because I am a female only secondarily, as a man is male only secondarily.

Primarily, I am a human being, facing and dealing with the same conditions which affect a man. If I can't think and talk about those conditions as a man thinks and talks about them, then I've no business writing at all.

And that goes for all the rest of this equal rights world. This is no place for females who have gotta act like ladies.

Just Folks

Song for Today

Oh, it's best to keep on going whether hopes be low or high.
It is best to keep on working though the fates our dreams deny.
For the "what's the use of trying" and the "we're discouraged" men
Will be miles away from business when the good times come again.

Oh, it's best to keep on striving though the clouds are hanging low
And it's best to brave the tempest when the winds begin to blow.
For the "what's the use of working" and the "we're just waiting" men
Will find others in their places when the good times come again.

So, in spite of wind and weather and the hardships of the day,
We'd better keep on battling till the storms shall pass away;
For the "sit and wait for orders" and the "we should worry" men
Will be six months late discovering that good times are here again.

New York Day by Day

The Bowery Sulks

NEW YORK, Jan. 13—The droop to usual Bowery squalor is more pronounced this winter than ever. I walked from Chatham Square to Cooper Union last evening as day slipped off into dusk. The indigo sweep of the overhead elevated accentuated the rullenness.

For the Bowery does sulk. And not without cause. Never articulate, it seems at the moment especially mute. Little groups, knotted on the sidewalk, stand as unmoving as the grotesque clothing dummies which remain part of the pavement picture.

Through frosted hieroglyphics of hashhouse windows were the dejected, sprawling over pine-topped tables. Some with mouths agape, snoring. On the Bowery these days they buy a 15-cent meal and sit in a half stupor, like a python full of pigeons, until closing.

In the motley array appears more youth than usual. Capped and woebegone creatures with a several days' growth. They perch in doorways skewered like moulting sparrows on spikes. One called out: "Eh, Jack! A match!" I snapped a pocket lighter and held it forth but he forced me to walk over to him.

"That's service, buddy," he said. All laughed. A moocher came up for "just a jitney for a cuppa cawfee." I gave him a coin, which he accepted without thanks. Indeed, I detected a grumble at t . size as he walked off inspecting it.

In every block were those lurching outcasts fumbling about in a haze of the lethal drink of the section—"Bowerysmoke." It is hawked off the hip at 10 cents a swig. These are the human lees sifting slowly to the dregs. The submerged tenth!

Many are men, once of earth's high places, who had their Scotch and soda at exclusive clubs and "went the route"—through the brothels of Port Said and the "dive joints" of Alaska and finally the Bowery. Also a sprinkling of those amiably muddled harridans who talk to themselves.

After sundown cheerful little missions fill. Along benches in Hadley's Rescue Hall—John Hadley himself once a drunkard and thief who with regeneration consecrated life to his fellows—there sit rows of repentant roysterers in cowlike docility. They listen to the kindly gospelers and with boredom lift husky voices in "Washed in the Blood of the Lamb," in exchange for free coffee and a flop.

In a West 72d street hotel I formed a lasting friendship with a man from Ohio, "saved" at the old McAuley Mission on Wasser street. His features are etched with the imprint of dissipation. Rising to the eastern management of a successful [illegible] enterprise, each night he went to the Bowery to participate in "experience" meetings at various missions. Like most men who had their bout with booze and tussle with tobacco, he had no tolerance for either. I never smoked in his presence. Otherwise he was one of the kindliest, most thoughtful souls I ever knew. His regeneration "took." He had led an upright life for 20 years.

On the old Evening Mail was a copy reader, a handsome figure of a man, who drifted into the Bowery Mission—Hadley's, by the way—one stormy night on the verge of the horrors. At the conclusion he staggered to the mourners' bench at the call for sinners. His home was rehabilitated and for months he was a model of sobriety. Then one calamitous morning Robert E. MacAlarney, city editor, now a distinguished writer and editor, called me to his desk. "Get ——— out for a walk before the managing editor comes in!" he whispered.. Our desk mate was completely blotto. I went with him to a neighboring saloon where he punctuated sobbing over falling from grace by calling for more "whiskey straight." Later he lost his job and I never saw him again, but should his eyes fall on this I'd like to hear all is well.

Our Bankers Reckless in Adventures Abroad

By Merryle Stanley Rukeyser

Thus far America's adventure as a creditor nation has been far from uniformly satisfactory.

On long term private loans, numerous Latin American governments are in default, and other broken promises are threatened.

On the side of short term banking credits to Germany, the huge advances are frozen by the so-called standstill agreement.

New York has displaced London as the banking center of the world, and the question before the American people is whether to become elated over the fact.

Until its recent abandonment of the gold standard, London ruthlessly sacrificed the interests of home industry and labor to the exigencies of international finance.

It should confine its export of capital to demonstrable surplus over and above the legitimate needs of American industry and labor. Unlike little England, America is so vast and so promising in long term economic possibilities that it can prudently employ at home most of the savings of its people and most of the credit resources of its banks.

Unfortunately, American commercial and investment bankers, in their first fling at international lending, were not actuated by this common sense standard.

The Department of Commerce recently estimated the long term private investments abroad at fifteen billions of dollars.

It has been demonstrated that this prodigal outpouring of the sinews of peace enabled foreign borrowers to build instruments of social progress which the lending bankers opposed at home as extravagant or Socialistic.

This estimate of prodigal lending does not include the ten billions which the United States Treasury advanced to the Allied powers during the war and after the armistice, and for which we are cursed for seeking to collect in part.

Even more serious is the carelessness with which the banks of deposit here, which are tantamount to mints in our credit economy, lavishly poured colossal amounts of short term funds into Central Europe. Frequently the American banks were holding the bag to the extent of more than half a billion dollars in German acceptance credits.

It is now recognized that the lenders were ABSURDLY CARELESS in neglecting to get satisfactory statements of condition from foreign borrowing banks.

The very bankers who were TYRANTS at home with small business men became SUCKERS when they roamed abroad and accommodated foreign banks.

It is a matter of conjecture how much will be salvaged from the frozen German acceptance credits.

Meantime the bitter consequences of careless foreign lending serve to deepen depression and deflation at home, for banks, with potential huge foreign losses, are too cautious and timid in their present relations with their domestic customers to enable home business to proceed efficiently. The Wheeler subcommittee of the Gifford committee, in a public statement, urged the banks to take a more liberal attitude toward their honest, but hard pressed, customers.

If the commercial bankers had not poured loans unwisely into questionable foreign situations; they would not be in a position which prompts belated caution toward their domestic customers at a time when the higher interests of the American people call for larger liberality and venturesomeness.

The banks were doubtless within their legal rights in using loanable funds FOOLISHLY ABROAD.

The Federal Reserve Banks may have been technically correct in purchasing quantities of German bank acceptances, endorsed by American member banks.

BUT THE MEMBER BANKS, THE RESERVE BANKS, AND THE SUPERVISING FEDERAL RESERVE BOARD DID A VAST DISSERVICE TO THE AMERICAN PEOPLE.

Instead of averting panics and keeping bank assets liquid, the Federal Reserve, which is regarded as the moral leader in American commercial banking, remained silent while American bankers indulged in a RECKLESS ADVENTURE in high finance overseas.

The vicious circle consists of refusal of credit to smaller American business men, who normally would be accommodated, because the banks are tied up with questionable foreign assets.

Fortunately, in spite of puerile banking, American banking reserves are still colossal, and the huge gold hoards provide the legitimate basis for a deliberate counter-deflationary credit expansion designed to promote job creating American trade and industry.

LET THE BANKERS OF THE COUNTRY BEGIN TO RECOGNIZE THEIR RESPONSIBILITY FOR AIDING AMERICAN ECONOMIC RECOVERY, AND LET THEM TEMPER THEIR INTERNATIONALISM IN FINANCE BY GREATER REGARD FOR AMERICAN NEEDS AND REQUIREMENTS.

A Matter of Taste

There is nothing particularly lovely or joyous in the nasal crooning that passes for song today. It is the reverse of bel canto. Perhaps one might call it mal canto, or worse.

But for some mysterious reason it is popular. To chant a throaty, raucous something, with mouth half closed and St. Vitus waves of the arms, gains a performer tremendous applause from the populace. Some "adepts" in it have been exalted to the rank of demi-gods, their hands have been gilded and their love affairs are of vast popular interest.

Cardinal O'Connell has fulminated against them as "whiners and bleaters that defile the air," given to "imbecile slush."

He did not speak ex cathedra on this. It was merely the reaction of a man who acutely disliked what he heard by radio. He voiced the sentiments of people who don't like crooning a little bit. But this hapless minority has the remedy in its own fingers—it can turn crooners off just as easily as it can turn them on.
